Editorial

By Maggie Thompson

❧ In the course of a casual conversation with Harlan Ellison — No, wait. That's a contradiction. I don't think there is such a thing as a casual conversation with Harlan. But the topic was not of shattering importance — except to Harlan and to me: I had managed to misspell Edgar Allan Poe's middle name — something which bugs the heck out of me, because I swear I'd have caught it if I'd been proofreading someone else's text — in Comics Guide in #1252.

In the course of the conversation, though, he mentioned that there had been a four-issue Marvel reprint series called X-Men: A Mutant Named Legion and that he had missed #4. I immediately looked it up in our infallible 1998 Comic Book Checklist & Price Guide — and discovered that we'd never obtained the issue, ourselves. So I'm on a quest. I'm looking for a copy of #4 for Harlan — and for Checklist & Price Guide information for me. What's the title as printed in the indicia (the tiny type with the copyright information), what's the cover price, and what's the date on each issue of the series? Thanks to whoever can help.

Edgar Allan Poe, Edgar Allan Poe, Edgar Allan Poe.

❧ Speaking with reporters from other fields is a recurring experience around here. I recently talked with a writer from U.S. News & World Report who had a completely different take on comics from the reporter from that publication I had talked with a couple of months ago. Delightful conversation — made even more fun by the fact that she had been referred to me by someone at the Library of Congress. (And a jolly good thing she didn't call later in the day, by which point laryngitis had make me the butt of an assortment of snotty remarks around the office. They'll get theirs, though, because I eventually get my laughs.) She was looking for a parallel in discussing current attempts to control material on the Web — and had come up with what happened to comics in 1954. Not bad, eh?

❧ Which leads me to the thought that it can be handy to be thought of as a positive community resource. If you're known in your community as a resource person (activities in charity fields, helpful at your library, entertaining at the schools, etc.), it can sometimes help our entire field. The flip side is that being unwashed, unkempt, and awkward in public situations can plug you (and our field?) into the sort of preconception that has made Star Trek buffs a stereotype unto themselves. (I speak here as someone who followed Star Trek from before the TV premiere of the show.)

Inker Barb Kaalberg, for example, gives chalk talks and career discussions to school kids. Tony Isabella is working to get comics material in his area library. Some retailers have gone to library boards in their area and offered to provide assistance in purchasing good graphic novels. Conventions (not to mention people connected via the industry, as is the case with some publishers, for example) have donated profits to such visible area concerns as a children's hospital, a children's burn center, Ronald McDonald House, and Red Cross blood drives.

When my kids were in elementary school, I always volunteered my day for the "Reading Is Fundamental" program. Now, I work as a Donor Room Aide when the Red Cross sets up its blood drive in Iola. In the most recent such drive, the goal was 60 pints; 100 people attended, donating a total of 90 pints. (Being a Donor Room Aide is a lark; the idea is to keep the donors' minds off the process, so you need only natter at them about any- and everything for the duration of the process. I usually start with, "Have you finished your Christmas shopping?" no matter what time of year it is.)

❧ Speaking of making a donation that benefits the community and the donor: Something that costs a fee for taking the course but that is also well worth the time and money is the Red Cross "Before Emergency Help Arrives" class in First Aid, including CPR. For anyone interested in bodily responses to injury (as, for example, Batman with a bullet lodged next to his heart — or a private eye who's been knocked out), this is invaluable. And you'll know what to do in an emergency. (And, by the way, if you last took the course five years ago or more: There have been a lot of changes.)

Icahn and Toy Biz file competing reorganization plans for Marvel Entertainment

By Michael Dean

Carl Icahn has a new deal for the Bankruptcy Court and a new name for Marvel. On the heels of a gloomy third-quarter report, Marvel Entertainment filed a reorganization plan Nov. 20, which was followed a day later by a competing reorganization plan filed by Toy Biz and Marvel's lender banks.

Marvel's proposal calls for the company to be replaced by a new corporation, "Numarvelco," under the control of Carl Icahn. Toy Biz' plan would merge the two companies and allow the lender banks to retain an interest in the combined company.

The Icahn plan

According to a Reuters report, Marvel's reorganization plan would transfer all the assets of Marvel and its bankrupt subsidiaries to a new corporation called Numarvelco, which would be governed by Marvel's current, Icahn-appointed, board of directors.

Icahn, a Marvel bondholder who took control of Marvel from financier Ron Perelman five months ago, is the chairman of Marvel's board.

This plan proposes that Numarvelco would supply $125 million to pay off Marvel's secured creditors, who are owed approximately $700 million. An additional $92 million would be placed in escrow against Marvel's current $100 million debtor-in-possession loan.

Numarvelco would also put up $25 million for ongoing administrative costs and $5 million toward a pro-rated payment of Marvel's unsecured debts.

Marvel proposed to generate the $260 million through a rights offering to Marvel shareholders, the results of that rights offering to be guaranteed by Icahn's High River LP and Westgate LP.

The proposed reorganization plan was filed at a Chapter 11 hearing Nov. 20. One day later, Toy Biz announced the filing of a competing joint plan of reorganization supported by more than two-thirds of Marvel's senior secured debtors.

The Toy Biz plan

Under the terms of the Toy Biz proposal, shares of Toy Biz common stock would convert into shares of common stock in a combined Marvel/Toy Biz, giving Toy Biz stockholders a potential 41% interest in the company. The plan calls for the satisfaction of Marvel's debts by the payment of $230 million in cash in addition to common and convertible preferred stock totaling a potential 40% interest in the combined company. Stock totaling a potential 19% interest in the combined company would be sold to new investors at a price totaling approximately $90 million.

The combined company would also guarantee $40 million of debts owed by Marvel's Panini sticker manufacturing subsidiary. Unsecured Marvel lenders would receive two-year warrants for the purchase of common stock accounting for approximately 4% of the combined company at a price of $15 per share.

Current Marvel stockholders would find their ownership reduced to approximately 8%, which they could obtain through subscription rights to purchase common stock prior to the formation of the combined company at a price of $9⅝ per share. Exercise of these subscription rights would dilute slightly the ownership interests of the other stockholders in the combined company.

Toy Biz CEO Joseph Ahearn said, "We are extremely pleased by the support that our plan has received from Marvel's senior secured creditors. We have worked diligently to prepare a detailed plan to solve Marvel's nearly year-long bankruptcy. A successful completion to Marvel's bankruptcy is clearly in the best interests of Toy Biz' stockholders, as well as the employees of both Toy Biz and Marvel, who have endured the uncertainty about the fate of these two companies for far too long."

Marvel's senior secured lenders and Toy Biz also agreed to solicit potential buyers for a combined purchase of the two companies prior to the closing of the merger.

Toy Biz' proposal is contingent on approval of its board, the make-up of which remains a contested issue. Icahn has claimed Marvel's contract with Toy Biz gives Marvel the right to appoint Toy Biz' board, while Toy Biz has claimed that right was voided by Perelman's departure from Marvel.

Courtroom struggle

The struggle over control of the Toy Biz board, as well as the two reorganization plans, must be decided by U.S. District Court Judge Roderick McKelvie, who has recently taken over Marvel's Chapter 11 proceedings from retiring Judge Helen Balick. McKelvie said he would not be able to rule on the issue of Toy Biz' board before Dec. 12.

Other motions also await McKelvie's attention. Icahn has filed suit, asking for monetary and injunctive relief against Marvel's lender banks, Perelman, and Toy Biz, claiming the company had been damaged by financial maneuvers of the defendants.

A previous proposal by Marvel for the resolution of its debts failed to win the required approval of two-thirds of Marvel's lender banks. The lender banks led by Chase Manhattan Bank have resisted all Icahn's efforts to replace them as Marvel's principle lender, since that would give Icahn's loans priority over their pre-Chapter 11 loans.

Chase Manhattan has petitioned the court to appoint a trustee to oversee Marvel's debt settlement and reorganization.

Third-quarter woes

In the meantime, Marvel's financial state has continued to worsen. According to the company's third-quarter report, filed Nov. 19, Marvel's net revenues have decreased by $34.1 million (27.1%) from 1996 to 1997, including a decrease of $29.1 million in net trading-card and sticker revenues, a decrease of $4.3 million in net publishing revenues, and a decrease of $800,000 in licensing revenues.

In its report Marvel stated, "The company believes that since, and in part as a result of, the commencement of the company's Chapter 11 proceedings, the company has continued to experience greater than expected weakness in certain businesses due to, among other things, certain mass merchandisers maintaining lower than expected levels of inventory of the company's products and the company realizing lower licensing revenues. The company believes that these lower inventory levels and licensing revenues relate to customers' concerns as to the impact of the bankruptcy of the debtor companies on the future of the company's brands. There can be no assurance that, upon consummation of a plan of reorganization, there will be improvement in any of such businesses." Icahn representatives had not responded to CBG by press time. Marvel stock closed at 1 5/16, up ⅛.

Suspect in killing of manga artist's daughter dies during shootout

A man wanted in the kidnapping and murder of the daughter of Japanese manga artist Ikki Kajiwara and Chinese TV actress Pai Ping-ping was killed Nov. 17 during a shootout with police in Taiwan's capital city of Taipei.

Kao Tien-ming and two other suspects have been the subjects of the largest manhunt in Taiwan's history since Kajiwara and Pai's 17-year-old daughter, Pai Hsiao-yen, was kidnapped on her way to school April 14.

A ransom note demanding $5 million was sent to Kajiwara, accompanied by a finger severed from Pai Hsiao-yen's hand. A ransom pick-up fell apart when the abductors found that Kajiwara had notified police. Pai Hsiao-yen's body was found a few days later.

The country was so shocked by the crime that citizens took to the streets to stage protests, forcing the resignation of Taiwan's minister of the interior and national police chief.

One reason the case received such wide attention in Taiwan was the celebrity status of both of the victim's parents. Pai Ping-ping is a familiar Asian television actress. Kajiwara is the creator of Tiger Mask, a pro-wrestler comics and cartoon character well known in Japan. The character's name was adopted by a real-life Japanese pro wrestler, who was recently inducted into the Puroresu Hall of Fame.

Kao was the second of the three suspects to die. Lin Chun-sheng died following a gun battle in downtown Taipei in August. Kao and a third suspect, Chen Chin-hsing, escaped on that occasion even though police had all three suspects pinned down.

Kao and Chen are also suspects in a triple homicide that took the lives of a plastic surgeon, his wife, and a nurse at a plastic surgery clinic Oct. 25. All three victims were found shot in the head at close range. Tape had been place over each victim's eyes. Police had feared that Kao and Chen might have forced the surgeon to alter their faces before killing him, but later witness reports disproved the theory.

Despite an island-wide dragnet, the two fugitives had repeatedly eluded police. Police said they believe the two moved from home to home, breaking in while owners were away. Stopped at a police checkpoint Nov. 3, Kao reportedly shot his way free.

In the Nov. 17 gun battle with hundreds of Taiwan police officers, however, Kao's luck ran out. According to a Reuter's report, a senior police officer announced in a state television broadcast that Kao had been shot and killed. Reports did not clarify whether Kao had committed suicide or been shot by police.

Chen remains at large. On Nov. 6, a woman reported that Chen had broken into her apartment intending to rape her. The woman told police Chen broke off his attack when he learned she was menstruating. Instead, Chen reportedly sat and talked with the woman, confessing to his involvement in the killings at the clinic. The woman said Chen had told her Kao had done the actual killings. Afterward, he disappeared again into the surrounding Taipei neighborhood.

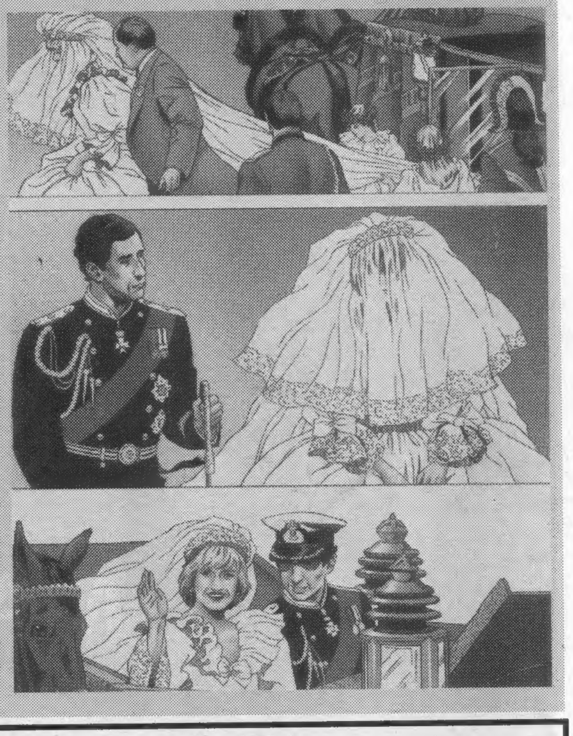
Topps responds to tragedy with Princess Diana tribute comic book

Topps has shipped a special tribute comic book to the late Princess Diana. According to Topps spokesperson Charlie Novinskie, Princess Diana: Once upon a Time ... had not been in preparation prior to Diana's recent death, and the decision to produce the title was so sudden that it was too late to solicit it in distributor catalogs for October. Topps described the project as a magazine-size comics biography that "preserves the memory of the People's Princess in a way photographs cannot."



The comic book was produced under a tight deadline, written by Dwight Jon Zimmerman, and drawn by June Brigman and Claude St. Aubin. John Hanley painted the title's cover. Priced at $3.95, the 32-page oversize comic book is projected to be the first issue of a line of Topps Tribute comics.

‘The House of Secrets’ gets a new address in Hollywood

By Matt Brady

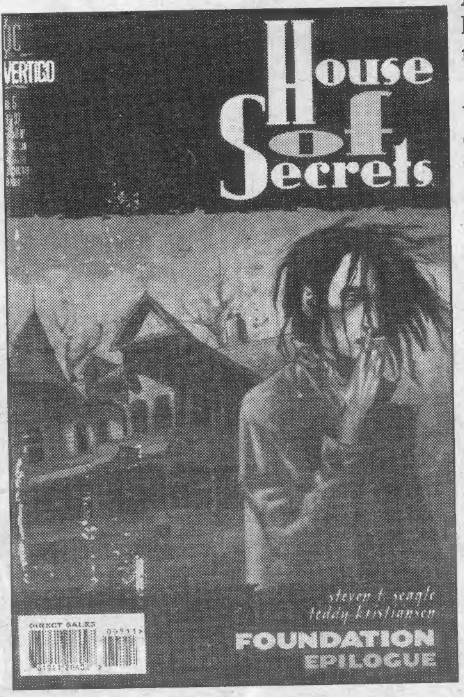
With only 16 issues under its belt, the DC/Vertigo House of Secrets series, co-created and co-owned by Steven Seagle and Teddy Kristiansen, is headed for the big screen.

Optioned by Warner Brothers’ The Canton Company, the story is described as a classic haunted house story fused with a courtroom drama. The movie will follow an 18 year-old runaway girl as she seeks refuge in an abandoned house, only to find that it is haunted by a ghostly jury who put people on trial for their deepest, darkest secrets. For judgment, the spirits may send the girl to the attic for absolution or to the basement, where she will suffer with her secrets forever.

Variety reported that the producers, who want to turn the property into a Scream-like franchise, intend to stick to a modest budget with a few visual effects — the formula that has proved successful for teen horror movies in the past. To stay true to the comics’ storyline, Warner Brothers hired Seagle to write the first draft of the script.

As an answer to the inevitable “Why now?” question, Seagle pointed to the current resurgence and successes of teen-oriented horror movies. “It’s just the right time for it, I guess,” Seagle said. “Studios are really looking at horror movies again with the success of Scream and I Know What You Did Last Summer.”

He said that initially Spelling Entertainment (the company behind Melrose Place and Beverly Hills 90210) was interested in developing House of Secrets into a weekly television series, but, when that deal fell through, he realized that he needed some help. “The House of Secrets deal really hadn’t been in the works for all that long,” Seagle said. “I had sold a television pilot by myself and decided that I probably should get an agent. When I did, my agent asked me why Teddy and I hadn’t sold House of Secrets yet, and I told him I wasn’t sure how well it would go over, and he told me that we could sell it within a week. We got the proposal out there, he set up the meetings, and we had offers the first day it was out there.”



As soon as the offers started coming in, Seagle and Kristiansen found themselves in a typical showbiz dilemma: go with the studio offering the most money or go for the studio with the best vision for the property? “We had a really tough moment when we got a huge money offer from people who just didn’t get what we’re going for with House of Secrets,” Seagle said. “But ultimately, we decided that we had to go with Mark Canton because he had the best feel for the material.”

Well aware that movies based on comics can sometimes leave the subtleties and nuances of the material behind for more obvious audience-drawing plotlines, Seagle said that both he and Kristiansen look at the film with a little detachment. “Teddy and I both regard the comic book as our story and, while I am writing the screenplay, we see the film as a whole different entity entirely,” Seagle said. “That way, at the end of the day, if the movie is different from the comic book, we won’t be too bothered, because we’ll still be able to tell the stories we want to tell in the comic book.”

For Seagle, the House of Secrets deal comes as his third sale to Hollywood in a little over a month. Along with the movie pitch, Seagle sold a pilot called Carnival to Fox, as well as an animated series that sold before the original story had been completed.

“I was doing a children’s book with Dean Ormston called Dot’s ’Bots, which we hadn’t finished yet, but through the friend of a friend, we sold the idea to Mainframe, the animation company that did Reboot and Beast Wars,” Seagle said. “It’s about a young girl who solves the problems with artificial intelligence and creates humanistic, functioning robots — it’s just a wild, zany adventure story.”

But has all of the sudden success spoiled Seagle? “Not really,” he said. “I’ve been very lucky very quickly. So now, all this just basically means that I won’t stop writing or leave my house for the next three months, doing comics from 8 to 5 and then working from 7 until midnight on the films. The Hollywood stuff has a habit of being there and then not being there the next time you look, so I don’t want to quit comics and go Hollywood, only to have Hollywood go away and leave me in the cold. I’ll stick with comics for a while.”

Comic books have made themselves an integral part of the Christmas season, according to a study of holidays and popular culture newly released by the University of Tennessee Press. Academies have only recently begun to make amends for a long history of ignoring the role of comic books in American culture. In New Old Fashioned Ways — Holidays and Popular Culture (ISBN 0-87049-952-1), author Jack Santino, a professor at Bowling Green University, has devoted several pages to a survey of the ways that comic books reflect and commercially exploit various holiday traditions. In fact, comics get more attention in the book than Hollywood films and TV shows, although, strangely, the most elaborate discussion of comics appears in a chapter called "The Year in Candy."

Santino said that products associate themselves with holidays not just during Christmas, but throughout the year, and each product reconfigures the calendar in its own way. The year in candy, for instance (centering on such occasions as Easter and Valentine's Day), is different from the year in beer (centering on such occasions as St. Patrick's Day and the Super Bowl).

The year in comic books, according to Santino, was initially a child's year: "A look at the seasonal comics of the 1930s, '40s, and '50s reveals the following patterns: The primary special issues were for Christmas or, in some cases, winter, along with summer vacation, back-to-school, and Halloween. Little Lulu was featured annually in a Halloween special; Bugs Bunny in a Christmas special; Archie and the gang hung up their Christmas Stocking every year; Tom and Jerry had Winter Fun and Winter Carnival issues; Woody Woodpecker went to the County Fair and then Back to School."

Holidays and Popular Culture
Jack Santino

Comic books take a holiday in this new book about how popular culture redefines our calenddar.

With the development of an adult comics-reading audience, the rise of the direct market, and the proliferation of smaller, independent comics publishers, Santino said, the pattern of represented holidays began to vary in complex ways. "Today there are Earth Day specials, at least one parodistic St. Paddy's Day special, erotic Valentine's Day comics, and a Super Bowl special," Santino wrote.

One purpose of holiday specials in comics, as outlined by Santino's book, is in their ability to provide a link between the fictional world of the characters and the real world of the reader. For titles with ongoing storylines, the holiday-themed specials and stories also serve to mark points of intersection (often contradictory) between the series continuity and real time. Santino illustrated this with a description of Steve Englehart's 12-issue limited Vision and Scarlet Witch series, each chapter of which was built around such real-time holidays as Martin Luther King Jr.'s Birthday, Mardi Gras, and even the April 15 IRS deadline. "The series culminated with The Scarlet Witch giving birth to twins," Santino wrote. "Although it was not specified in the story, the author told me that it had been his intention for the story to culminate on Mother's Day."

At the same time, holiday stories, like holidays, are — because of their special status — outside of everyday continuity, what Santino called a "time out of time." In the book's conclusion, Santino quoted from the letter of a modern comics fan who enthused about holiday specials — especially Christmas stories with "a gruesome twist at the end" — because "they seem to lie outside a character's normal continuum. Thus, anything can happen in this special setting."

Santino contrasted this fan's exhilaration over the uncertainties suggested by holiday comic books with the comforting presence of holiday comic books as part of a family's Christmas tradition. The family cited was that of CBG Editor Maggie Thompson, whose evocation of a Christmas memory tied to comic books by Walt Kelly and Carl Barks was quoted at length: "While Don was downstairs, preparing the punch and lighting the candles, and turning on the Christmas lights on Christmas morning, for example, I would read favorite Walt Kelly stories — such as 'How Santa Got His Red Suit' — out of Santa Claus Funnies and Christmas with Mother Goose. Later in the day, Don would sit with Valerie and Stephen to read them such stories as 'A Christmas for Shacktown' and 'The Golden Christmas Tree,' not to mention the story of the duelling steam shovels."

The celebration of Christmas I enjoy from the sidelines. My Christian friends have made this time of the year a joyous time, indeed. I love driving through neighborhoods at night to see the festive lights. Our family has done this for years. In San Diego we also have the "Parade of Boats," where hundreds of boat owners go crazy decorating the mastheads, etc. People line the shores for miles to see it. Homes on the side of the mountains glow in creative designs. I love shopping in department stores this time of year. The stores glisten.

This goes way back to Detroit, when I was a child and we drove downtown to see the windows of the J.L. Hudson company. Hudson's was 14 stories tall and a block square. The windows at street level had motor-driven figures and each was a breathtaking scene.

Yes, for this Jewish man Christmas has always been a joyous time. I look at my rack of cassettes and I see Kate Smith Christmas, Peggy Lee's The Christmas List, Christmas with Ella Fitzgerald, Andrews Sisters Christmas, Big Band Christmas, Perry Como Christmas, Bing Crosby's Christmas Album, Mills Brothers Christmas, and Christmas with Gene Autry.

I've got to admit that sometimes I even play them in July, when I "need a little Christmas."

As for the "Peace-on-Earth-good-will-to-all-men" thing, I do that all year long! Maybe just for variety on Dec. 25, I should say, "Bah! Humbug!" But instead I'll just say, for the CBG poll, here is my list:

Pre-Schoolers: Mickey Mouse alarm clock, Little Mermaid Music Box, Dr. Seuss' Green Eggs and Ham, children's cartoon-themed jewelry, cartoon-themed bedsheets.

Grade-Schoolers: Nancy Drew or Hardy Boys books, Oz books, Dale Messick's Cut-Out and Coloring Book (Vol. 1 and 2), Sergio Aragonés' Louder than Words series.

Teen-Agers: Betty Boop condom carrier (just kiddin'), Alex Toth by Design (book), Witchblade collection, The Rocketeer, Cliff's New York Adventure and Rocketeer graphic novels, The Illustrated Star Wars Universe (book), William Stout 50 Convention Sketches (Vols. 1-4).

For a Woman: Jessica McClintock perfume (Sure worked for me; right, Pauline?), dinner cruise on San Diego Harbor, tickets to a play, a weekend stay at The Del Coronado Hotel, cruise ship vacation, Wonder Woman Archives #1.

Five Gifts I'd Suggest:

1. Subscription to The Jack Kirby Collector.
2. The Complete Jack Kirby (Vol. 1).
3. The Ray Bradbury Chronicles.
4. A trip to "The Ackermansion." (Call (800) 921-9581 to order your double CD-ROM.) My gift is to tell you about it.
5. Betty Boop the Definitive Collection video set (Vols. 1-8).

Gift I'd like to receive: Wonder Woman Archives #1 (ships in January).

From NEA Today, the National Education Association (teacher's union) mag, November 1997, Vol. 16, #4:

> After completing a lesson on library procedure that included distinguishing fiction from non-fiction, I assigned my fifth-grade students their first book report of the year. They were to report on any non-fictional hero of their choice.
> As the class filtered through the school library in search of books on their heroes, I noticed Jared, a freckle-faced redhead, frantically perusing the card catalog.
> A few minutes later, he dejectedly shuffled over to me lamenting, "Mr. Chaney, I can't find any books on my hero, Superman."
> I was just about to inform Jared that Superman wsas a fictitious character. But then his classmate Angie blurted out haughtily, "Of course you can't find anything on Superman, silly. That's a fiction name. You need to look under Clark Kent."
> Jerome "Jody" Chaney
> Pittsburg, California

My only question is, what does he mean Superman is fictitious? This guy Chaney needs to take time out and — look, up in the sky ...

In an unrelated item, I enclose for Maggie's viewing pleasure a pic of my wife, Janette Gerdes, who delighted her junior-high students by appearing as Action Girl this Halloween.

Janette approached a group of girls and intoned, "Seen any evil-doers?" As they giggled and said they had not, she replied, "Carry on, citizens!"

As Janette walked away (to continue patrolling, I suppose), she overheard one of the teen-agers whisper, "She is so cool!" Guess whose wife came home with one swollen head this Halloween.

Through my own clumsiness, I allowed an error to crop up in my guide to Peanuts strip reprints. My statement that the name "Peanuts Collectors Series" and the volume number within that series does not appear on the early volumes of that series is wrong.

The early volumes have the name and numbering on the back cover, and some have it on the spine. They merely do not have that information on the front cover, as the later volumes do.

As long as I'm amending the article, let me also note that, just as the book Snoopy is not included on the list (despite being the same format as books that are listed) because it mainly reprints otherwise-reprinted strips, the book Snoopy Come Home also doesn't qualify for the list.

Nor does the Peanuts Classics book What Makes You Think You're Happy (which is a reprint of Snoopy) and the Fawcett book We Love You, Snoopy (which reprints selections from Snoopy Come Home).

I hope this clarifies any confusion that people may have about these books.

A quick comment concerning CBG #1249: Wow! Your 200-page king-size spectacular was a massive delight, from the Frank Frazetta cover to the Previews ad. Maggie often comments on the energy and effort it takes to produce each week of CBG, and it was certainly apparent this issue.

Your entire staff's work is greatly appreciated, and I can think of no better compliment than my explaining how one of this issue's features moved me.

But I Digress is entertaining every week; Tony's Tips always provides wonderful recommendations; and POV is simply one of the best columns of any periodical I read. But #1249's articles by John Wells on "Lost DC" was sheer joy for me. Wells' summations (along with the very concept of this giant-sized issue) sent my mind swirling back to my earliest comics-collecting days of the 1970s.

I fondly remember extra-large DC comics, especially those "100 Pages for 50 (later 60) cents" issues. One of my favorites was an Action Comics with a cover showing Superman pulling back a mock cover — and that issue's featured heroes charging from underneath. There was also a World's Finest cover with Supes pulling apart a stretched-out screaming Metamorpho. I recall a Shazam! with a grinning Mr. Mind, a Justice League with Amazo, and a couple of *Batman*s, *Detective*s, and *Flash*s.

But the 100-pager which affected me most was a Superboy Starring the Legion of Super-Heroes with a cover depicting a dead Superboy being hoisted out of the water by a monstrous limb while shocked Legionnaires looked on.

At 8 or 9 years old, I remember being immediately intrigued by the idea of an entire legion of heroes who were just a few years beyond my age. However, that 60¢ comic book was a bit pricey for a lad of limited funds.

(A digression: A few months later, after finally purchasing a Superboy Legion issue, I recall thinking how "unhip" and "corny" the Superboy character was. How dare this kid from the future blatantly copy the costume and powers of "our" adult present-day Man of Steel? Obviously, the origin of the character was not explained or even mentioned in the stories of the time. If it was DC's intent to keep readers interested in the Legion-only, it sure worked in my case; I fell in love with the stories and that flashy art by some newcomer named Mike Grell, and the Legion remains my favorite team to this day. At that time, however, I thought it would have made more sense for Superboy to have been from the future, his having earned the right to mimic Superman as some sort of tribute and honor. Of course, I later discovered how much history the Superboy-Legion concept had, and that fueled my admiration for the team.)

The preceding outbursts, along with Wells' having sparked my memory, leave me with a dilemma: I presently own none of those giant comics, due to various incidents over the years, including a few "Mom-got-rid-of-my-comics" episodes that I'm sure most long-time collectors can relate to.

I would love to collect those classics, so I hereby request Information Please.

Most collectors are aware that the 100-pagers appeared as randomly published miscellaneous issues of DC's then-current titles.

Specific issue numbers are not available to me. (Which 100-page Superman title featured a Daily Planet cover with Superboy punching Superman, Superman kneeling at Clark Kent's grave, and Supes trying to lift a barbell?)

Can anyone come up with a complete list of which titles were "100 pages for only 50 (or 60) cents?"

Not only am I interested in purchasing these comics in decent condition, but I would also be willing to pay a reasonable "researcher's fee" to anyone who can provide an accurate listing and a reliable buying source.

I would not need to ask for the help of the CBG family of readers and staff, if all retailers filed their back issues by "same cover price" or "miscellaneous titles within a specific time period," or, most logically, "all titles that Carl Brown might need."

Fat chance, huh?

Obviously, I could use a road map before this journey begins, but the hunt is one of the most enjoyable and rewarding aspects of our little hobby. I thank CBG and its readers for any help you can provide.

P.S. Of course, you are probably wondering why I may be overlooking a potential source of help residing in your very publication. Rest assured, CBG classifieds was my first thought. I scan them weekly, and my first ad is hopefully in that department right now.

[BWF: Have you consulted our 1998 Comic Book Checklist and Price Guide — 1961 to Present yet? One entry that will help you get started is the one for DC 100-Page Super-Spectacular*, which can be found on Page 140. The numbering of the series (which, according to late DC Editor E. Nelson Bridwell — in an issue late in the run, and I am paraphrasing here) began for some inexplicable reason with issue #4 in 1971.*

The first three issues (#4, #5, and #6) were published with 1971 cover dates and no month and contained, respectively, "Weird Mystery Tales," "Love Stories," and "World's Greatest Super-Heroes."

The series' numbering then added a "DC" to its beginning, making the next issue #DC-7,

Oh, So?

which was also known as Superman #245 (Dec 71), so you could actually have to look in two places to find the issue.

The dual numbering practice continued for the next five issues — #DC-8 aka Batman #238 (Jan 72), #DC-9 aka Our Army at War #242 (Feb 72), #DC-10 aka Adventure Comics #416 (Mar 72), #DC-11 aka Flash #214 (Apr 72), #DC-12 aka Superboy #185 (May 72), and #DC-13 aka Superman #252 (Jun 72).

The series then went on hiatus for a few months before returning with #DC-14 (Feb 73), which featured Batman stories.

It continued for just a few more months with #DC-15 (Mar 73), featuring Superboy stories, #DC-16 (73, no month), featuring Sgt. Rock, #DC-17 (Jun 73), featuring the JLA and JSA, #DC-18 (Jul 73), featuring Superman's 35th anniversary, #DC-19 (Aug 73), featuring Tarzan, #DC-20 (Sep 73), featuring Batman, #DC-21 (Oct 73), featuring Superboy, and #DC-22 (Nov 73), featuring Flash.

A Shazam! issue was the next scheduled, and, since Shazam! #8 had a cover date of Dec 73 and was a 100-Page issue, it can be assumed that it would have been #DC-23, if the series had continued.

We would be interested in a complete listing of all larger-page-count issues (80 pages as well as 100 pages) from not only DC, but also other publishers. It would also help our database to know the original cover price and publication date.

This might also be the best place to point out that the second of the four Wells articles had a line cut due to a computer error.

On Page 125, the final column ends with "... written by Steve Englehart and ..." The missing line is "... pencilled by Marshall Rogers."]

Two thoroughly unrelated points regarding issue #1253:

First, how many G.I. Joe fans will complain about Marc Patten's The Toy Box column, where he cites Snake Eyes as a "would-be world conqueror"?

Snake Eyes was, after all, one of the most intriguing good guys in that particular line-up (though I can understand confusing the name Snake Eyes with, say, Serpentor).

Second, the interview with Russ Heath was terrific!

It reminded me of one of his most unusual works (at least, in my collection): the cover of Marvel's Power Pack #46, where that just has to be Heath's inks over Whilce Portacio's pencils.

I've always thought there was just something really, really intriguing about the notion of Russ Heath teamed with Whilce Portacio — to draw The Punisher, two Power kids, and Dakota North.

For my money, "Who'd've thought it?" stuff like that is one of the great joys of reading comics.

[We don't know how many will complain about Marc's Snake Eyes reference, but you're the first.]

I finally decided to get off the sidelines and write a letter to the one publication that is both a must-buy and a true value each month. I really enjoyed the article in issue #1248 about the proliferation of high-end collectibles; however, this topic has been one of my few pet peeves in this industry.

I don't understand why there aren't more less-expensive items out there.

I appreciated the comment that there are alternatives, such as a Christmas ornament, as opposed to a statue. Why can't there be a variant edition statue, so to speak, similar to the Doc Savage plaster and bronze busts of several years ago?

I don't think I'm alone, either. I'm sure there are many other comics fans with limited budgets. I can't help but feel that this cross-section of fans is being ignored for the sake of creating this new market. I am aware of profit margins and other aspects of business but still find it hard to believe that a cheaper plaster or plastic version cannot be made profitably.

I also would agree that there is a bond between comics characters and fans creating the desire for these collectibles. My first comic book was Marvel Two-in-One #21 with The Thing and Doc Savage, and since that time I have always been on the lookout for collectibles of these characters.

I bought the first Wolverine statue after acquiring an interest in Uncanny X-Men because it was only $40, but since then I've been priced right out of the market for statues. Thankfully, Terry Allen, as seen in CBG, sold those plastic Doc Savage movie statues for only $75; otherwise I would have paid upwards of $300.

I'm sure, if this letter is printed, I'll read many reasons why cheaper versions don't and won't exist, but I still can't help wishing they would.

Thank you, CBG, for being there and giving all of us a place to rant and rave, regardless of our opinions, as well as for the free classifieds — anyone want to trade a boatload of comics for a bronze Doc Savage statue?

[As we put together the high-end collectibles issue, we found an amazing number of keen items that we ended up not including, because they weren't comparatively expensive.

Randy Bowen has produced not only bronze statues that sell for thousands, but also small items for less than $100. I bought both his small Lobo and his Marv figures — and they were filled with the same loving detail he had used in his larger figures that sell for around $300.

This is my first letter to CBG, and I just wanted to say a few things about the new Valiant Heroes line from Acclaim Comics. I love it! My taste in comics ranges from DC superheroes to London Night Studios, and in my opinion the Acclaim Valiants are among the best.

Oh, So?

X-O and Magnus have been solid from the start, Troublemakers has been good and now it's even better with the art of Kevin West (Embrace #1), along with Fabien Nicieza's innovative storytelling. Quantum & Woody is deserving of its positive publicity with its off-the-wall stories and solid art from Mark Bright. Master Darque (Christina Z. and Leonardo Marco) was intense, and the upcoming Harbinger: Acts of God looks especially interesting.

I think these new Valiant heroes have the same high-quality stories as the early pre-Unity ones — but with better overall art and coloring, plus a wider audience appeal.

I'm sure that you will get a lot of positive mail about your special Veterans Day issue. It and the last few issues have been outstanding in their contents. Not only great reading, but great research and time put into a lot of the articles. The quality shows. I think this should always be a yearly event.

I want to thank you for allowing me to be a part of the Veterans Day issue with the publication of my interview with Russ Heath. I think, for many of us, he and Joe Kubert, Ross Andru and Mike Esposito, Jerry Grandenetti, Jack Abel, Irv Novick, Mort Drucker, and many others at DC defined the look of the war comics in the late '50s. Russ Heath and company brought to vision a part of history to many of us growing up in a time after World War II and the Korean War. Along with masterful stories by Robert Kanigher and Bob Haney and others, we were able to remember and honor those veterans. We must never forget.

It also pleases me to read that Charles Schulz is donating $1 million for a D-Day memorial. I'm very grateful to see him always honor veterans on D-Day and Veterans Day.

Another person who honors veterans is Jim Scancarelli with his Gasoline Alley strip. He's always honoring veterans, classic comic strips, and old horror-movie characters. It would be nice to see an article or interview with him some time. It would really be nice if all of the comic strips would pay tribute together to veterans next Veterans Day. It seems, as each year passes, there is less and less emphasis placed on honoring the veterans. We all need to remind people why we honor them.

[In fact, Waupaca County — in which Iola is located — has an enormous facility which is home to many, many vets who need extra care. Nevertheless, there were few attendees at local Veterans Day ceremonies, as you suggest.

In fact, it wasn't until this year that I became increasingly curious about my father's service as a medic during World War II. I did try to talk with him about it, but he always blew it off lightly, saying he had served way behind the lines and spent most of the war delivering babies in rural Italy. NPR had an extremely moving tribute to medics — and I'm going to pursue the topic with my mother. Exploring family background can sometimes bring a subject home in a way that history texts seldom do. (Besides, they never managed to get much past World War I by the end of the school year, when I was going to high school. Do they make it past Vietnam in schools today?]

Thank you for the ability to respond to CBG by e-mail. I was never much for letter-writing, actually letter-sending. I'll write but I let them lie around, never getting sent.

I am writing regarding the article that discusses Neal Adams and his company, Continuity. This is all from a reader's point of view; I don't pretend to know comics publishing. I can't believe that they have the gall to publish more comics. The thing that killed off Continuity was, well, Continuity. Poor editing, couldn't keep a monthly schedule, and starting projects that were never finished.

For example, the "Deathwatch 2000" crossover. I had just started reading comics again after many years off. I saw the hype for "DW2000" and put the various titles on my pull list. Green Lantern/Green Arrow comics are one of my fond teen-age memories. Continuity's schedule made Image look relatively on time. Issues in the crossover came in late, out of order, misnumbered.

The spelling in the first several issues was horrible. That was one letter I did write and send. The spelling got better, but I'm not taking any credit for that.

Right now I can't remember whether it was a 19- or 20-part crossover, but I do remember that the last one was never published. So I spent $40 or more buying a story that had no end. On top of that, it started publishing the next crossover. That barely got off the ground.

After several months and solicitations had gone by, I called Continuity and asked if it intended to finish the "DW2000" crossover. I was told something about how they were having trouble getting the art finished. It would be out in a couple months.

Never came out.

Oh, yes, they were also going to have a crossover with Spawn that never materialized. Even Russ Heath, in an interview in the same issue of CBG, said he worked on a contracted comic book at Continuity and it made a shambles out of the process.

Speaking of GL/GA, I just bought the entire run of The Question by Denny O'Neil and Denys Cowan. Fantastic series. Ran 36 issues, and, when it was canceled as a monthly, the story had been finished. And it was 36 parts.

I would like to see Vertigo do a Question series. I'd like to see more adult themes from Vertigo, other than swearing and the supernatural. But long live John Constantine.

THANKS TO MR. S. DITKO FOR THE LAY-OUTS.
BACK IN MARCH OF 1960, THE 33RD ISSUE OF CHARLTON COMICS' SPACE ADVENTURES INTRODUCED US TO AIR FORCE WHIZ KID CAPTAIN ADAM. THIS OFFICER, WE'RE INFORMED, "KNOWS MORE ABOUT ROCKETRY AND MISSILES AND THE UNIVERSE THAN ANY MAN ALIVE". Phew! NICE RESUME.
IF THAT WEREN'T ENOUGH, WE'RE TOLD HE ALSO WAS "A PHYSICS PRODIGY AT EIGHT, A CHEMIST, [AND] A BALLISTICS GENIUS?!"
AND WHAT EXACTLY IS THIS BIG BRAIN DOING WHEN WE FIRST ENCOUNTER HIS SMARTNESS? TINKERING WITH A SCREWDRIVER--INSIDE AN ATLAS MISSILE EQUIPPED WITH AN ATOMIC MISSILE!--JUST MINUTES BEFORE BLASTOFF!!
IF THAT'S NOT BAD ENOUGH, HE DROPS HIS TOOL--AND THEN GETS HIS HAND STUCK TRYING TO REACH IT! UNABLE TO WIGGLE FREE, AND MAKING GOMER PYLE SEEM THE MODEL MILITARY MAN BY COMPARISON, OUR ALLEGED GENIUS FINDS HIMSELF TAKING AN UNSCHEDULED--AND UNWANTED--TRIP TO OBLIVION.
OR SO YOU MIGHT EXPECT. SOMEHOW, IN SOME CRAZY "WE CAN'T EXPLAIN-AND, IN FACT, ARE UNDER NO OBLIGATION TO DO SO" COMIC-BOOK WAY, CAPTAIN ADAM NOT ONLY SURVIVES THE BLAST, HE RETURNS TO EARTH FULL OF POWERS AND VINEGAR TO TAKE ON THE GUISE OF CAPTAIN ATOM, HERO OF THE ATOMIC AGE.
WHAT MADE THIS FEATURE MEMORABLE WASN'T THE STORIES--OBVIOUSLY!!--BUT THE SINGULAR ART OF STEVE DITKO, ILLUSTRATING THE ADVENTURES OF HIS FIRST SUPER-HERO CHARACTER, PREDATING HIS GROUND-BREAKING WORK ON SPIDER-MAN BY OVER A YEAR.
THE CAPTAIN APPEARED IN 9 ISSUES OF SPACE ADVENTURES BEFORE QUIETLY FADING AWAY, PERHAPS TO LET MR. DITKO CONCENTRATE ON HIS ROLE IN HELPING LAY THE FOUNDATION FOR THE MARVEL UNIVERSE.
BUT YOU CAN'T KEEP A GOOD MAN DOWN--OR GOOD ART FROM BEING REPRINTED! SURE ENOUGH, A COLLECTION OF THE INITIAL CAPTAIN ATOM STORIES REAPPEARED WITHIN THE PAGES OF STRANGE SUSPENSE STORIES 75, 76 AND 77 IN MID-1965.
BY THEN ALREADY A MASSIVE DITKO FAN, THIS WAS WHERE I FIRST ENCOUNTERED THE PROTOTYPE FOR MANY OF THE COSMIC HEROES THAT FOLLOWED. WHEN NEW STORIES--PENCILLED BY DITKO, OF COURSE--STARTED IN ISSUE #78, I WAS GENUINELY THRILLED.
BUT THAT'S A STORY FOR ANOTHER TIME. FOR NOW, I'M JUST HAPPY TO HAVE THE OPPORTUNITY TO PAY TRIBUTE TO THE ORIGINAL RUN OF STEVE DITKO'S FIRST ACTION STAR, CLAD IN HIS FIRST--AND CERTAINLY BEST--UNIFORM.
I MEAN, JUST WHAT WERE THE FOLKS AT DC COMICS THINKING WHEN THEY REDESIGNED HIS COSTUME? TO ME, HE NOW LOOKS AS IF THE SILVER SURFER GREW HAIR, PUT ON BOOTS AND GLOVES, AND WAS HIT IN THE CHEST WITH A ROTTEN TOMATO.
The FIRST CAPTAIN ATOM
BUT MAYBE THAT'S JUST ME.

Super-Joy to the World

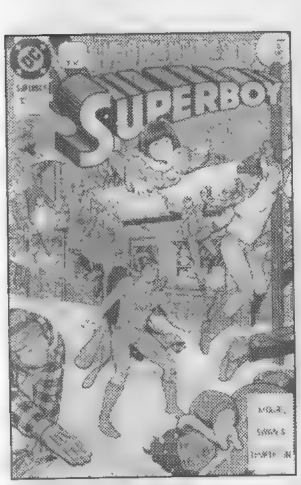
A look at how some super-heroes have experienced Christmas over the years

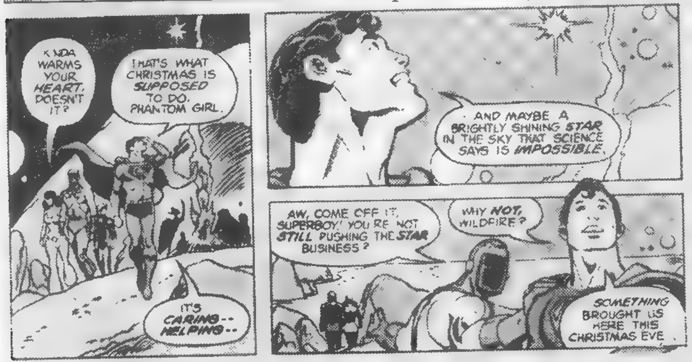
By Patrick Daniel O'Neill

Given the amount of red and green in the palette of super-hero comic books, you'd think Christmas stories would be a natural. Surprisingly, going through my collection (which covers such Silver and Modern Age classics as Justice League of America, Avengers, X-Men, and Superman), I found only a double-handful of issues with Christmas themes — and three of them were seasonal specials devoted to the holidays.

This is by no means a complete survey of the Yuletide in super-hero comics; I know there are holiday specials I don't have in my collection, for instance, and there are probably Christmas stories in individual issues of titles I never collected.

I wasn't surprised to discover in my collection far more Christmas stories published by DC than by Marvel. Marvel's titles, even in the Silver Age, were far more involved in telling an ongoing story than in individual, stand-alone issues, and breaking the storyline for a seasonal adventure would probably have been a bad idea. DC, on the other hand, was still concentrating on "Done in One" well into the modern era, for the most part, so a Christmas story was seen as both timely and a good cover feature.





KINDA WARMS YOUR HEART, DOESN'T IT?
THAT'S WHAT CHRISTMAS IS SUPPOSED TO DO, PHANTOM GIRL.
IT'S CARING-- HELPING--
AND MAYBE A BRIGHTLY SHINING STAR IN THE SKY THAT SCIENCE SAYS IS IMPOSSIBLE.
AW, COME OFF IT, SUPERBOY! YOU'RE NOT STILL PUSHING THE STAR BUSINESS?
WHY NOT, WILDFIRE?
SOMETHING BROUGHT US HERE THIS CHRISTMAS EVE.

At least two versions of Superboy have had Christmas-related stories. From the top: The Superboy based on the early '90s television show found that all the citizens of Smallville had wished for and received super-powers in Superboy *#12 (Jan 91), while the "original" (er, pre-Crisis) Superboy took the Legion of Super-Heroes on a quest to find the Star of Bethlehem in* DC Special Series #21 (Apr 80).

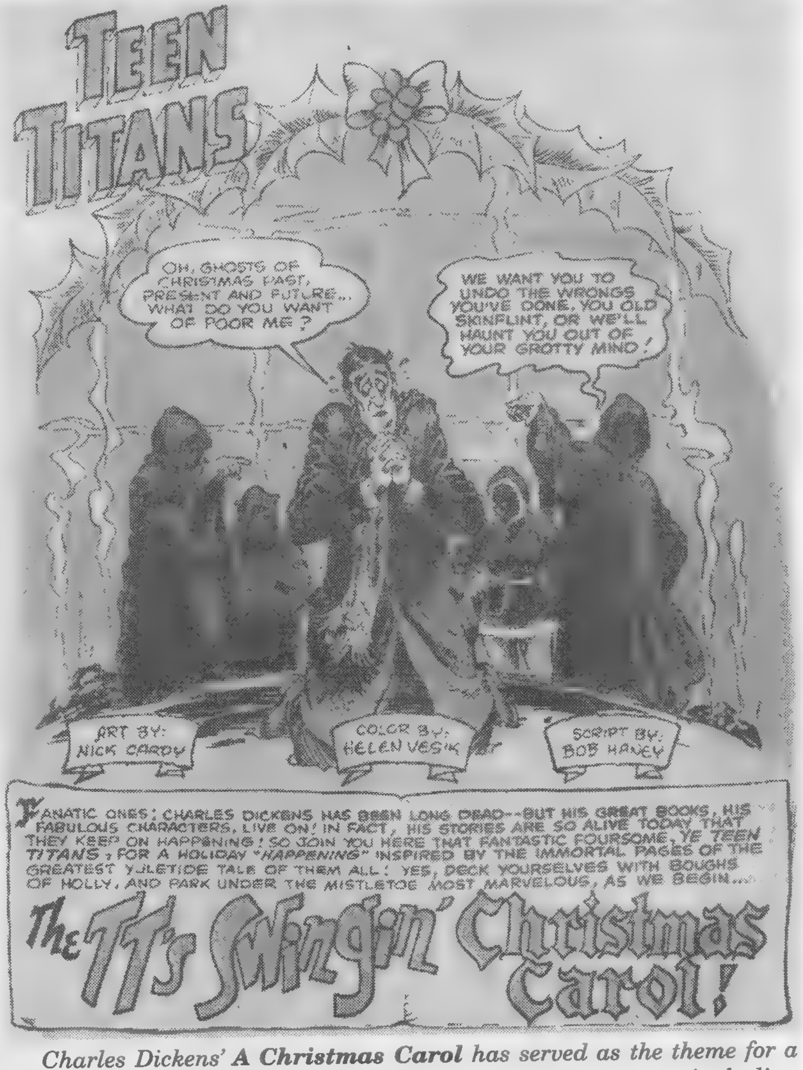
CHRISTMAS WITH THE SUPER-HEROES
CHRISTMAS

In 1987 and 1988, DC published an annual Christmas special, Christmas with the Super-Heroes*. The first issue reprinted earlier Christmas-related stories, while the second consisted of new ones. Last year and this, DC has provided new Christmas stories in the* DC Universe Holiday Bash*.*

If you're looking for Christmas stories, it's important to remember you won't find them in the November or December cover-dated issues. By the end of the Silver Age, comics were cover-dated two to three months ahead of publication date, so Christmas stories showed up in issues with February dates on them. By the 1970s, cover dates were so far ahead of publication dates that Christmas issues carried April cover dates — so it might seem in retrospect as though the Spandex set had been celebrating the Nativity when it should have been remembering the Resurrection! Today, things have settled back down to a two-month difference, so Christmas stories tend to have February dates.

With that background out of the way, here's a quick trip through some of my favorite Christmases with the super-heroes:

The Teen Titans spent Christmas 1967 offering their own version of Dickens in "The TT's Swingin' Christmas Carol" (Teen Titans #13 (Feb 68), script by Bob Haney, art by Nick Cardy). Seems Ebenezer Scrounge, proprietor of the local junkyard, not only mistreated such employees as clerk Bob Ratchet, but he conspired with Mr. Big, the local crime boss, to smuggle junk and use a techno-mumbo-jumbo device to transform it into new goods. When Ratchet's disabled son, Tiny Tom, discovered the plot, he turned to the Titans for help. Robin, Kid Flash, Wonder Girl, and Aqualad portrayed Christmas Spirits of Past, Present and Future and managed to set things right.



TEEN TITANS
OH, GHOSTS OF CHRISTMAS PAST, PRESENT AND FUTURE... WHAT DO YOU WANT OF POOR ME?
WE WANT YOU TO UNDO THE WRONGS YOU'VE DONE, YOU OLD SKINFLINT, OR WE'LL HAUNT YOU OUT OF YOUR GROTTY MIND!
ART BY: NICK CARDY
COLOR BY: HELEN VESIK
SCRIPT BY: BOB HANEY
FANATIC ONES; CHARLES DICKENS HAS BEEN LONG DEAD--BUT HIS GREAT BOOKS, HIS FABULOUS CHARACTERS, LIVE ON! IN FACT, HIS STORIES ARE SO ALIVE TODAY THAT THEY KEEP ON HAPPENING! SO JOIN YOU HERE THAT FANTASTIC FOURSOME, YE TEEN TITANS, FOR A HOLIDAY "HAPPENING" INSPIRED BY THE IMMORTAL PAGES OF THE GREATEST YULETIDE TALE OF THEM ALL! YES, DECK YOURSELVES WITH BOUGHS OF HOLLY, AND PARK UNDER THE MISTLETOE MOST MARVELOUS, AS WE BEGIN...
The TT's Swingin' Christmas Carol!

Charles Dickens' A Christmas Carol has served as the theme for a number of Christmas-related comics stories over the years, including Teen Titans #13 (above) and The Outsiders #5.

The Titans' elders, The Justice League of America, tracked down "The Man Who Murdered Santa Claus" in December 1973 (as told in Justice League of America #110 (Apr 74) by Len Wein, Dick Dillin, and Dick Giordano). Batman and Superman were preparing to host a Christmas party for some orphans, along with "Santa" Simpson, when the red-clad oldster was killed by a massive explosion. The only clue to his killer was a key tied with a Christmas bow and a poem warning The JLA of more disasters to come. Joined by substitute Green Lantern John Stewart and The Phantom Stranger, the team journeyed to St. Louis and defeated The Key (Gee, whodaguessed?), while they brought Christmas cheer to a slum neighborhood.

In 1979, DC relegated its Christmas tales to DC Special Series #21, subtitled Super-Star Holiday Special (cover-dated April 1980). The issue included Jonah Hex in "The Fawn and the Star" by Michael Fleisher, Dick Ayers, and Romeo Tanghal; Batman in "Wanted: Santa Claus — Dead or Alive" by Denny O'Neil, Frank Miller, and Steve Mitchell; Cain and Abel and The Three Witches in "The House of Mystery" by Bob Rozakis, Tanghal, and Dan Adkins; Sgt. Rock in "The Longest Night" by Robert Kanigher, Ayers, and Tanghal; and, my favorite of the bunch, The Legion of Super-Heroes in "Star Light, Star Bright, Farthest Star I See Tonight" by Paul Levitz, Jose Luis Garcia-Lopez, and Giordano.

Superboy visited The Legion in the 30th Century for a holiday celebration, only to discover that the high-tech brand of Christmas they had (or will have, or — oh, time travel gives me headaches) left him feeling cold and empty. To relieve that feeling, the Boy of Steel suggested that a few of the Legionnaires — Lightning Lad, Saturn Girl, Wildfire, and Phantom Girl — join him on a search for the Star of Bethlehem. Instead, they ended up on an alien planet, helping three diverse races live in harmony, safe from the dangerous environment of their home.

By the way, this was the story in which Legion fans discovered that Gim Allon, Colossal Boy, was Jewish, since he was seen celebrating Hanukkah with his family. (I guess like this year, in 2979, Hanukkah and Christmas will coincide.)

DC
SUPERMAN
BY DAN JURGENS AND JACKSON GUICE

The current incarnation of Superman has repeatedly taken time out from his adventures on Christmas Eve to answer his mail. And you thought your Christmas cards went out late.

That same year, 1979, Marvel's mutants enjoyed a not-so-merry Christmas, when Kitty Pryde — new to the team — had to single-handedly stave off an attack by the alien N'garai, in "Demon" (Uncanny X-Men #143 by Chris Claremont, John Byrne, and Terry Austin). The teen genius' command of technology allowed her to use The X-Men's danger room and its Blackbird jet to destroy the aliens, while the rest of the team were off celebrating.

Demonstrating that a good idea is never used just once, The Outsiders pulled off their own "A Christmas Carol — 1985" (The Outsiders #5 (Mar 86) by Mike W. Barr and Jim Aparo).

The team went after the conscience of Eben Mudge, accountant to crime lord Tommy Sinclair, hoping to get the old man to turn state's evidence against the gangster.

Impersonating Dickens' ghosts — as the Teen Titans had done nearly two decades earlier — The Outsiders convinced Mudge to inform on his boss and then protected him from a mob hit when he did. In a backup story, Black Lightning and Katana went Christmas shopping, only to help a department store Santa rescue his children from blackmailers and kidnappers, in a story told by Barr and Trevor von Eeden.

Stretching our definition of "superhero" just a tad, 'Mazing Man and roommate Denton Fixx held a "Christmas Open House" in 1987's 'Mazing Man Winter Special (cover-dated 1988). As usual, it was character more than plot that counted in the comedy tale by Rozakis, Stephen deStefano, and Steve Leialoha.

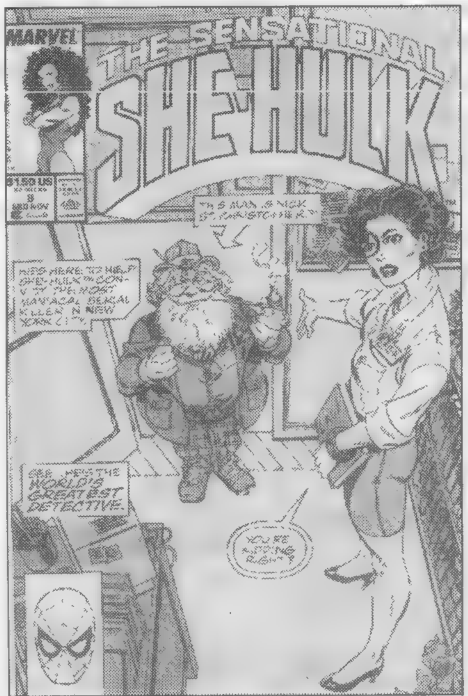
DC returned to the seasonal special approach in 1987 and '88 for its regular super-heroes, as well.

Christmas with the Super-Heroes #2 (cover-dated 1989 but published in late '88) included a number of solid holiday stories: Superman in "Ex-Machina" by Paul Chadwick and John Nyber; Batman in "… And in the Depths" by Dave Gibbons and Gray Morrow; Wonder Woman in "Gifts" by Eric Shanower; Enemy Ace in "Silent Night" by Byrne (in a masterful Kubert-like rendition); Deadman in "Should Auld Acquaintance Be Forgot" by Alan Brennert and Dick Giordano. My favorite in the group, though, starred Green Lantern and Flash in an untitled tale by Bill Loebs, Colleen Doran, and Ty Templeton.

The Scarlet Speedster and the Emerald Warrior, returning from monitor duty in the JLA satellite on Christmas Eve, helped a rich old man find the meaning of Christmas by letting him act as a literal Santa Claus — bringing gifts and joy to an entire town and all before dawn on Christmas morning.

Christmas stories don't have to happen at Christmas, however. Byrne made that clear when he introduced She-Hulk to "The World's Greatest Detective," Nick St. Christopher, in The Sensational She-Hulk #8, (cover-dated Mid-Nov 89, meaning it probably saw print in September). The diminutive, white-bearded St. Christopher, who claimed to know "who's naughty and who's nice," aided Shulkie in her first big case as an assistant district attorney — and left her a gift she could use whenever she needed it.

At the real Christmas 1989, Superman discovered that one of his co-workers was homeless and had been living in the Daily Planet offices for months. Roger Stern and Dan Jurgens told the story in Adventures of Superman #462 ("Home for the Holidays," Jan 90), and the discovery led the Planet staff to go out and help wherever they could that Yuletide, as Perry White's editorial urged the citizens of Metropolis to do the same.

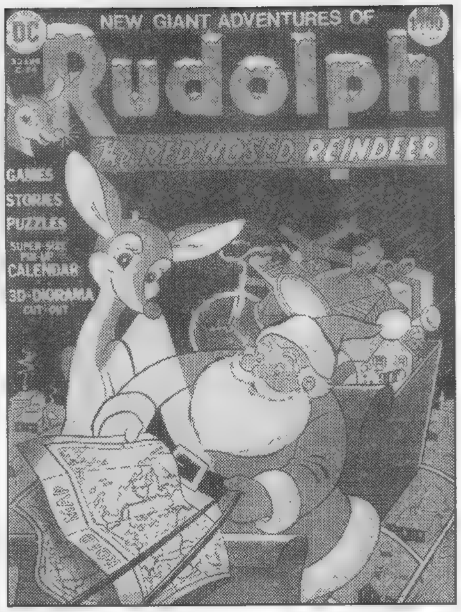


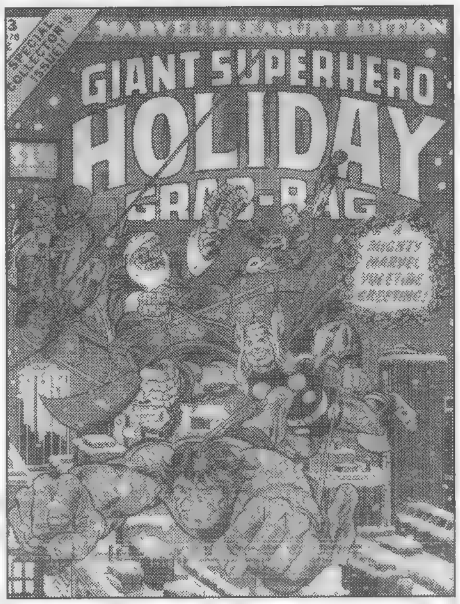
She-Hulk was aided by a "right jolly old elf" in The Sensational She-Hulk #8 (Dec 89).

DON'T BET ON IT, BOYS! EVEN IF SOMEONE DID MAIL THE LETTER, AND SANTA CLAUS GOT IT, YOU STILL WOULDN'T GET THE PRESENTS BECAUSE IT'S TOO STORMY BY NOW FOR ANYONE TO DELIVER THEM!
SANTA CLAUS CAN DELIVER THEM! HE CAN DELIVER ANYPLACE!

Carl Barks wrote and drew a number of Christmas stories during the Golden Age, including ones for what has come to be known as the "Firestone giveaways," promotional comics given out in the late '40s by Firestone dealers (a panel from the 1946 edition is shown above). These were collected a few years ago as part of Gladstone's Carl Barks Library*.*

Sheldon Mayer produced a DC series of stories starring that "most famous reindeer of all" in the 1950s and early '60s. They were later reprinted in treasury-sized editions in the mid-'70s at about the same time Marvel offered an annual Christmas treasury that contained reprints of earlier Marvel stories. Most of the Marvel reprints had nothing to do with Christmas (right).





At Christmas 1991, She-Hulk finally had the chance to use that gift from the mysterious St. Christopher in "Plastic Snow and Mistletoe" by Byrne and Keith Williams (The Sensational She-Hulk #36, Feb 92). Visiting her dad for the holidays, Jennifer Walters discovered that the greatest gift she could give her father was a chance to see his daughter as something other than a super-hero (an impossibility, seemingly, now that Jen was stuck as She-Hulk all the time). But nothing's impossible to the little man with the big white beard, so …

That same year, over on the DC side of the multiverse, Dan Jurgens and Jackson Guice gave us the opportunity to see how the Man of Steel celebrates the holidays. In a tradition reminiscent of the Postal Service's "Santa" program — in which companies and individuals fill the Christmas wishes of kids who write letters to Santa — Superman dipped into his "Metropolis Mailbag" on Christmas Eve to answer some of the millions of requests for help he got all year (Superman #64, Feb 92).

The next day, Superman's holiday duties still weren't ended, as he enlisted Bibbo Bibbowksi and Jimmy Olsen to bring Christmas cheer to some orphans — and reunited the redheaded photographer with his mother — in "Christmas in Suicide Slumberland" by Jerry Ordway, Tom Grummett, and Doug Hazlewood (Adventures of Superman #487, Feb 92).

One year later, with Superman dead after his battle with Doomsday, it seemed his Christmas Eve tradition would fail to be kept. But the world had not counted on the efforts of his colleagues in the superhero community. Led by Batman and Wonder Woman, the heroes and heroines spent the night and day answering the letters as he would have done — especially the one from the family whose house had been destroyed by the battle with Doomsday(Superman #76 (Feb 93), "Metropolis Mailbag II" by Dan Jurgens and Brett Breeding).

On that same Christmas Eve, The Flash found time to team with the original speedster, Jay Garrick, to help the folks of Keystone City and find "One Perfect Gift." Most importantly, they helped turn around the lives of Joe and Maria, whose child was born in a church that night. (Anybody need any coaching on the allusions, here?) The story's told by Mark Waid, Greg LaRocque and Roy Richardson in Flash #73 (Feb 93).

One year later, Wally West again lent his superspeed abilities to keeping the peace in the "Christmas Rush" (Flash #87, Feb 94). The Flash helped to keep some charitable efforts by a couple of local retailers from going bad when some bad guys decided the spirit of giving should be joined with the spirit of taking. Unfortunately, it was all apparently a ploy by a hidden enemy to destroy the hero's morale — a story that would have to continue past the Christmas season.

Every year, I return to the best of these Yuletide adventures as a reminder that even those who fight evil for a living can have a good time helping the less fortunate once a year.

OWN A PIECE OF THE FUTURE TODAY!

Original Paintings by Science Fiction Artist Sonia R. Hillios

These original paintings created for licensees of the major studios are rarely seen in public and usually unobtainable. Sonia's images of Star Trek, Star Wars, The Crow and others grace many book covers, limited edition prints, plates and collectibles. Her work has become highly prized by the serious science fiction collector.

Sonia's artwork my be found in private collections of actors and creators of the sci-fi universe. Now, this unique art is available to the general public. All the original paintings are fully framed and matted and come with a written appraisal.

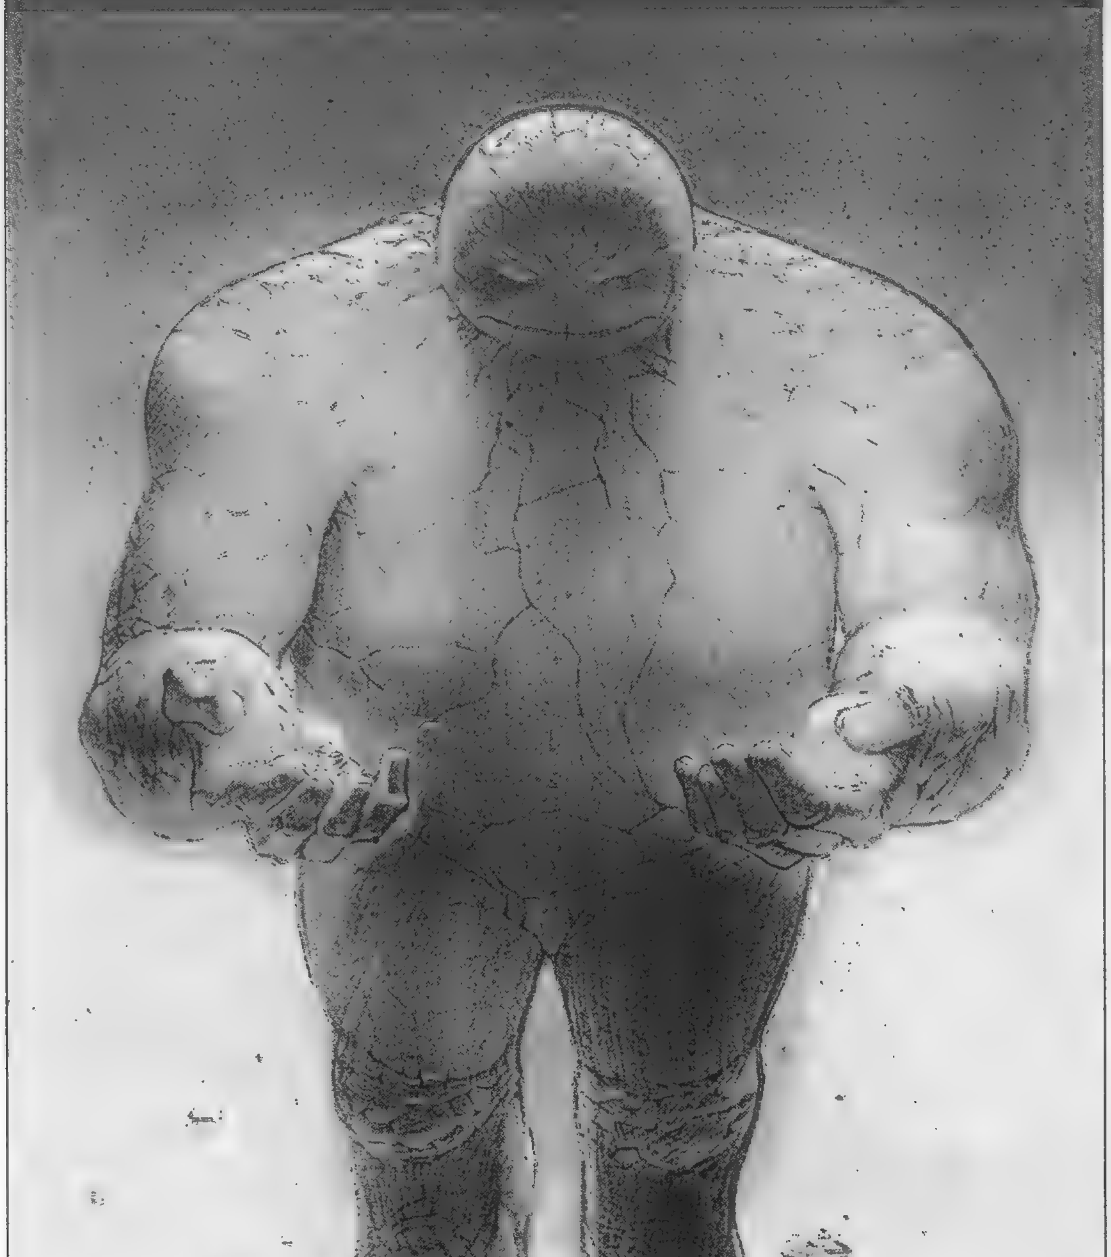
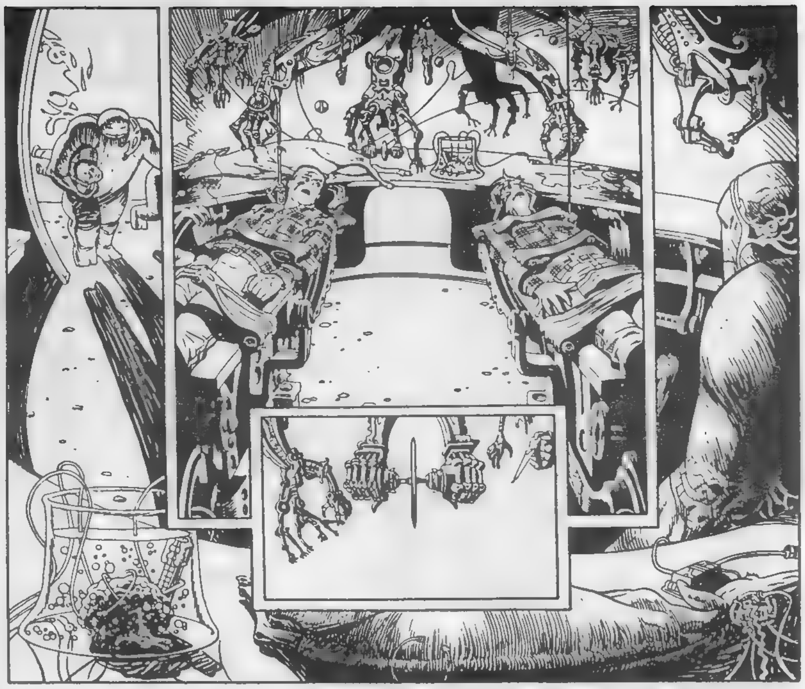
Not that old chestnut!

Concrete's creator reflects on origin stories, as he goes back to the beginning

By Paul Chadwick





In screenwriting there is a concept known as the obligatory scene.

One example is that, in a story about a protagonist and an antagonist, the two must eventually meet and struggle face-to-face. It's a good rule of thumb, perhaps open to being broken in a clever way (since thwarting expectations can be the right choice, sometimes). But chances are that, in telling such a story, if you ignore the rule you'll leave your audience disappointed and grumpy.

A similar idea holds in comics about series characters. The obligatory item here is the origin story. In it the character moves, usually, from being ordinary to extraordinary (and often fantastical). Bruce Wayne's traumatic experience and subsequent self-reinvention is the classic example. Bruce Banner's transformation by a Gamma bomb is another. Spawn's death and resurrection is perhaps an ultimate in the change-through-pain theme (as is The Spectre's).

The reason most, or at least the best, origin stories mine the vein of trauma is that they reflect a basic truth. Nobody travels to the extremes of human character without great suffering. In fact, nobody changes much at all without it. Looking at my own life, I find I've made major changes only in a state of desperate unhappiness. It's a larger application of the athlete's conditioning credo: no pain, no gain.

But why is the origin so de rigueur for comics? It isn't so in most genre fiction. Conan Doyle's Sherlock Holmes, MacDonald's Travis McGee or Clancy's Jack Ryan never had stories of their fundamental transformative experiences. In their first appearances, we just plunged right into their current "case" and had hints of their backgrounds judiciously dropped now and then.

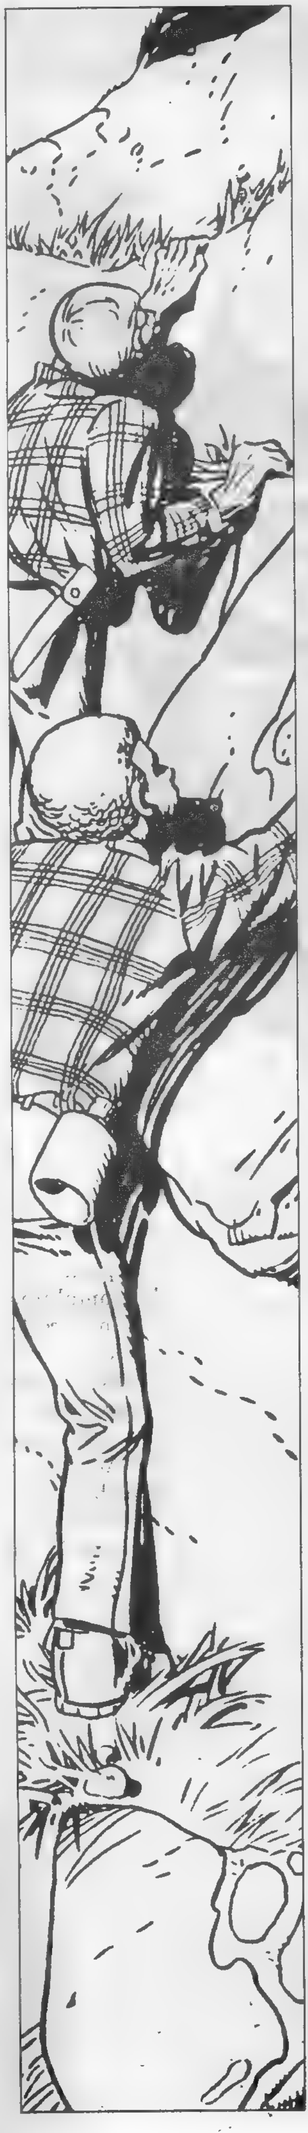
Such was my original approach with Concrete. This was hardly unprecedented. Moore and Gibbons' Watchmen had, a couple of years previously, started with a mystery and only guardedly revealed its characters' life histories. (But, then, Watchmen, which I consider the Citizen Kane of our field, stretched storytelling conventions in every dimension). Still, Concrete was lauded for this restraint at the time.

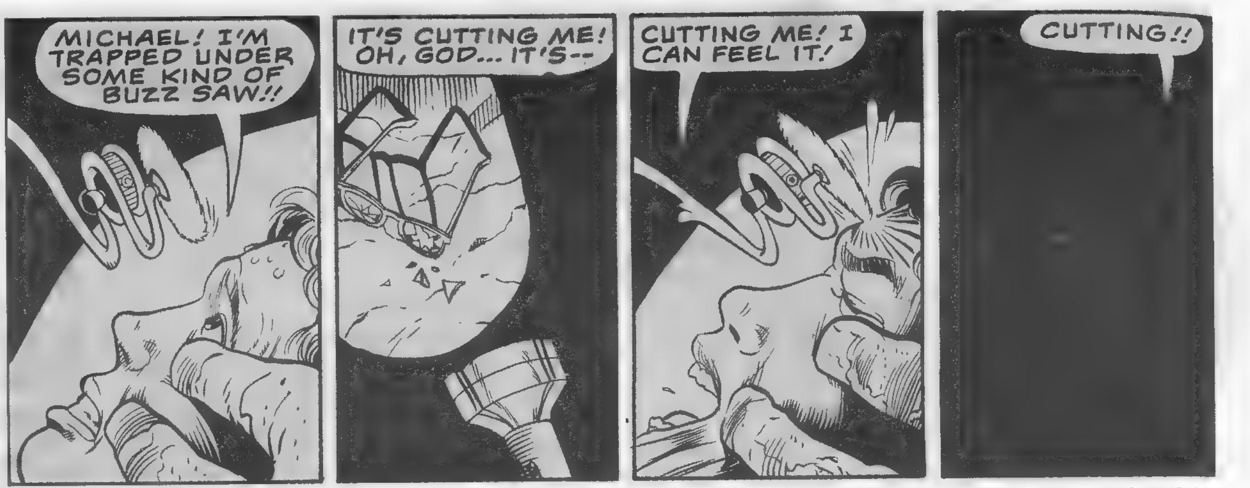
But, feeling I needed a rational explanation for the existence of this rock-coated man, I soon ran the origin story I'd been holding in reserve. This dismayed my biggest booster, Harlan Ellison, though he graciously compared it to "good moose turd pie."

(Joke: A mining camp has the rule that anyone who complains about the food has to take over cooking chores. One fellow, sick of having to cook, prepares a dessert with a special ingredient. "Hey," one of the diners angrily shouts, "this pie tastes like moose turds!" All eyes go to him. He realizes what he's said. Recovering, he adds, "And damn! That's the best moose turd pie I ever ate!")

That pressure to explain the fantastical is at the core of the origin necessity. Comics just lend themselves to fantastic subject matter, and the more outlandish it is the more it demands justification. So a man gains a rock-coated body when aliens transplant his brain. Radioactive spiders give beneficial bites. And gifted mutants sprout like mushrooms after a forest fire.

A further tradition, which I find myself partaking of in Strange Armor, is the revisitation of the origin after a number of years. This sort of recap has long been a comics staple but, when I entered the field in the mid-'80s, it seemed to undergo a sea





MICHAEL! I'M TRAPPED UNDER SOME KIND OF BUZZ SAW!!
IT'S CUTTING ME! OH, GOD... IT'S--
CUTTING ME! I CAN FEEL IT!
CUTTING!!

change. In these retellings, more depth, ambiguity, and detail were given to stories originally conceived in more innocent times. The nuanced, sophisticated Watchmen, in fact, had its genesis in the funky Charlton heroes of the '60s. John Byrne brought his rigorous, science-fiction-writer approach to The Man of Steel.

One of my favorites of this rich crop is Miller and Mazzucchelli's Batman: Year One. Most of the tale is told first-person by detective Jim Gordon, a decent, even heroic, but deeply compromised man at a crisis point in his life. It's an unusually sober story for Miller, who likes the potential for exaggeration that comics provide. Perhaps Mazzucchelli's Toth-inspired art moved him to keep a lid on his sense of humor. But the result is a realistic and emotional take on the Batman origin.

Memories of this story may have been eating at me when I decided to retell Concrete's origin in Strange Armor using, for the first time, first-person narration in Concrete's own voice. This limits one practically, for the thoughts of others must remain unrevealed (at least by thought balloons). But it is the surest way to a protagonist's pain — and pain, I am convinced, is the soul of both drama and comedy.

This voice allows me to touch on familiar events with a different feeling. Less glib, less facetious, there's more of the off-balance anxiety that comes from being ripped from a familiar, if stale, life. And maybe a little more truth.

That's one reason I chose to tell Concrete's origin again. The other is that I've changed in the dozen or so years I've been doing Concrete. A lot of these revampings seem to involve a young Turk with big ideas tapped to breathe life into an old franchise. That's not my situation; I'm the guy who came up with it the first time. But I have thought anew about a lot of decisions which 27-year-old Paul Chadwick made. What a shallow, awkward fellow he was, fumbling with the tools of his craft!

So, in my mind at least, that first go at the origin was a rough sketch. This is the finished piece.

Much of this rethinking grew out of co-writing (with Larry Wilson) and then rewriting, alone, a screenplay for an as-yet-unproduced Concrete movie. Revisiting these characters in the seminal events of Concrete's existence forced more thought about motive, potential visual spectacle, and simply making things more interesting. There are adequate ways of conveying information in a story, and then there are ways to imbed the information in sharp confrontations between people, and watch the ways they exhibit stress. These were things I had only a fuzzy feeling for when I was first getting Concrete down on paper.

Now I feel I have a firmer grip on them. (I may be wrong, and do the really definitive origin story in 2009.) At least, in this version there are sparks flying between Concrete and Maureen — and not the romantic kind. He's a guy made out for rocky relationships, and the triangle of loyalties he's in with Maureen and CIA spook Stamberg involves the stormy push-and-pull that a recently unmoored man would be subject to.

There's also better art. I find to my pleasure my drawing has improved in the intervening years, though nagging problems persist. Maureen still changes from panel to panel and I draw guns as naturally as a Tibetan surfs. I still pinball with urges toward simplicity and toward fussy rendering.

Still, I'm pleased with my look back (as I write, I'm working on the final, fifth issue of the series). It seems like the right time to do it. It's renewing. I'm looking forward to my next 12 years with this character. I recommend it for other creators of my vintage.

What say you, Baron and Rude? Scott McCloud?

Acclaim's Advent accolades

By Stephen Vrattos
Marketing Coordinator

Here is the list of Acclaim items we suggest as holiday gifts.

❄ Quantum & Woody: The Director's Cut trade paperback. Written by Christopher Priest, pencilled by MD Bright, inked by Greg Adams, lettered by Comicraft, color by Atomic Paintbrush. Cover by Bright and Adams. $7.95

The world's worst super-hero team get their own trade paperback, collecting the first four issues.

Creators Priest and Bright have added new material to the storyline, special bits they had originally wanted to do but could not due to space limitations. The recipient will discover how a dead dog inspired a friendship that led to a dislike that'll last forever, learn all about the secrets of "Noogie," and see the first appearance of The Goat.

❄ The Valiant Universe Poster. 22″x34″. $4.95. The stars of Valiant Heroes are together for the first time in the poster that collects the interlocking painted artwork by Vince Evans from the 10 variant-edition premiere issues of the Valiant Heroes relaunch in 1996-97.

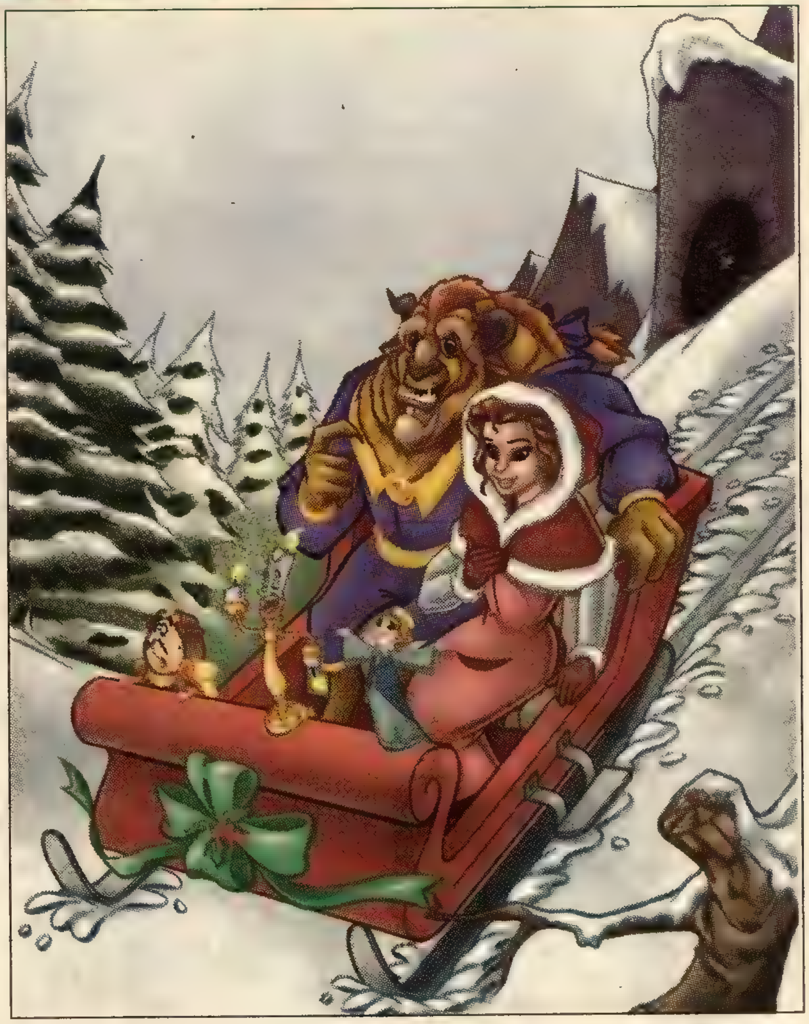
❄ Classics Illustrated — A Christmas Carol. Painted cover by Doug Wheatley. $4.99. The classic Dickens Christmas tale is adapted in a digest-sized storybook with added pages of commentary about the story, its themes, historical context, and author.

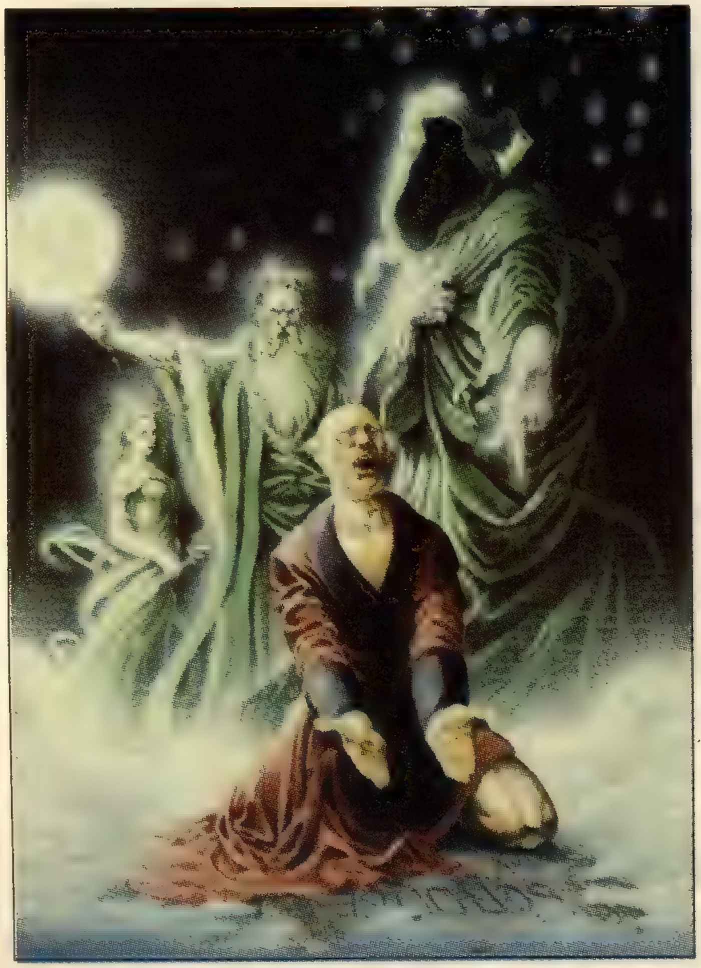
❄ For young readers: Disney's Beauty and the Beast Holiday Special. Digest-sized. $4.50. The original story was timed to coincide with the release of the direct-to-video Beauty and the Beast: The Enchanted Christmas. The holiday story features appearances by characters introduced in the video.

❄ Disney's The Little Mermaid: Underwater Engagements Flip Book Special. Digest-sized. $4.50. Timed to coincide with the theatrical holiday re-release of the movie, this digest features two new stories, one starring Ariel and the other starring Prince Eric, both taking place before the events of the movie.

❄ Disney's Action Club: Antique Attack Featuring Toy Story. Digest-sized. $4.50. Buzz Lightyear, Woody, and the rest of Andy's toys are confronted by a box full of older toys in a story pencilled by Jackson Guice. Back-up stories and activities round out the digest.

More holiday suggestions can be found on Pages 14 and 62.





Classics Illustrated: A Christmas Carol

DAN T's INFERNO
BY DAN TYREE

Welcome to a Christmas column floundering in search of a theme.

Perhaps I could explore the hot comic book that everyone will be reading during Christmas break. It's about a mythical character who lives at the North Pole, rides a sleigh pulled by magic reindeer, and distributes toys to children all over the world on Christmas Eve. Don't miss Right Jolly Old Elf #1, proudly trademarked by Rob Liefeld and Awesome Entertainment.

Or I could go over my Christmas card list with you. There's Vernon Adams, Mack Bowden, Sonny Flye, Denny Hulsey — the list goes on and on. I may or may not ever bother mentioning these people again, but don't the names sound cool? It's Dan T's Astro City! (Just kidding, Kurt.)

Should I mention gift purchases that have gone awry, like those really harrowingly precise gift searches? ("I want the one where Spider-Man's spider sense throws off an alarm like crazy but he ignores it — or the one where The Hulk declares that he's through with humanity and this time he means it, doggone it.")

I could remind you that — while you're enjoying your eggnog and family warmth — you should remember the loneliest people in the world: the six actors who haven't been paid megabucks to co-star in 1999's Batman and Robin and Batgirl and the Mormon Tabernacle Choir.

Or I could pay tribute to those devoted parents who rip through the department stores until 5:55 p.m. on Christmas Eve with but one thought in their minds: "Hey, the comics shop next door stays open until 6, too!"

Dare I gloat that wife Melissa has finally given me permission to finish my collection of The Complete Wash Tubbs & Captain Easy from NBM? (Could one of my readers please convince her to loosen the purse strings for a DC Archives or Marvel Masterworks volume — any of 'em — for Valentine's Day?)

Nah, I'll just say thanks to the fans who encourage me and the creators who inspire me. And pass along a couple of tips.

A subscription to the new Alley Oop the Magazine (a savvy mix of text and strips from various eras of the strip) would be a great gift. Send an SASE to SPEC Productions, P.O. Box 632, Manitou Springs, CO 80829.

And if you're a fan of Ask Mr. Silver Age, you'll love Robert Loy's fanzine Funny Books. Send an SASE to him at 4808 Bridle Path, Charleston, SC 29420.

Peace and good tidings to all of you.

Dan Tyree welcomes mail at 1801 Snake Creek Road, Belfast, TN 37019. He might even tell you about his fifth-grade creation, Missile-Toe. If he had kept practicing, he would probably be doing Yule-Tied for Eros today.

COMIC MAN

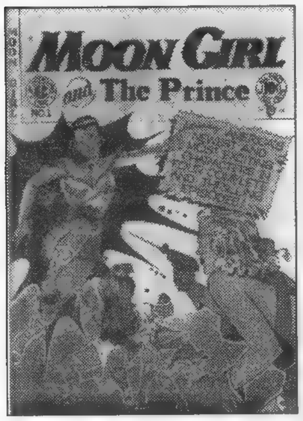
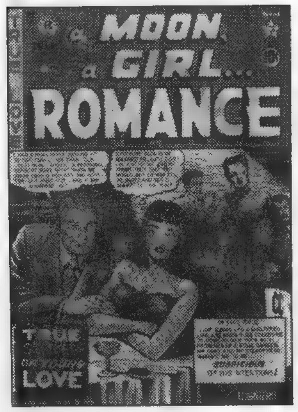
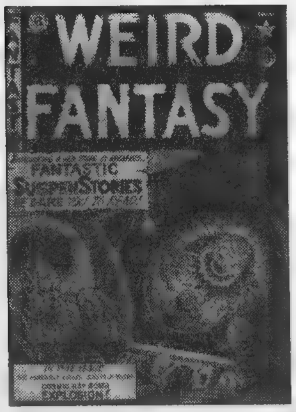
When I was first reading comics, it was an event when a company put out a new #1 issue. These days, it's an event when they don't.





A MOON A GIRL... ROMANCE
LOVE



Years ago, before the direct market, first issues sometimes did not receive full distribution to newsstands. The regional distributors weren't all that conscientious about comic books at all, but they gave precedence to established, known titles. New ones were handled as space became available. This was one of the reasons DC tested new titles as issues of Showcase, rather than launch them as new series.

And if they did four issues of Metal Men in Showcase — which they did — and then launched a new Metal Men comic book — which they did — that #1 would seem a little less like a new enterprise. Which it probably did.

In some publishing houses, minds were divided as to whether it was desirable to slap a #1 on a new title. When the first issue of Aquaman came out in 1962, there was no number on the cover — just a big banner proclaiming, "Now in his own comics magazine!" A few years later, I was corresponding with Jack Miller, a DC editor who had written many issues of the comic book. He wrote:

"There was a big argument over putting [#1 on the cover]. I forget the pros and cons, but they compromised by leaving the number off but putting the blurb on that said, 'Now in his own magazine!' How's that for having it both ways?"

Often, they avoided the question by turning an old comic book into a new one. When sales faltered on a DC comic book called My Greatest Adventure, they introduced a group called The Doom Patrol. Eventually, My Greatest Adventure #85 was followed by Doom Patrol #86. Today, they wouldn't have kept My Greatest Adventure around a second longer than its sales warranted. They'd have axed it and scheduled Doom Patrol #1. But, back then, it made sense to do it that way.

Some other examples: "Stanley and His Monster" was a back-up feature in the Fox and Crow comic book, so Fox and Crow #108 was followed by Stanley and His Monster #109. And Captain America took over the Tales of Suspense comic book, so Tales of Suspense #99 was followed by Captain America #100.

This kind of name-changing was, and still is, confusing for some readers. In 1962-1963, Marvel published The Incredible Hulk #1-6 and then, with splendid foresight, cancelled the series. The character wound up as a back-up feature in the Tales to Astonish comic book for a while.

Then, in 1968, they decided to restore the green-skinned gent to his own comic book, and he took over that title: Tales to Astonish #100 was followed by The Incredible Hulk #101, and that numbering continues to this day. This is all detailed in most price guides, but, still, you sometimes hear a dealer or collector say, "Gee ... I've seen Hulk #1 through 6, and I've come across copies from #101 and up. But how come you never see copies of Hulk #7-100?" (Answer: They never existed, Mylar-breath. Check your Overstreet.)

It even sometimes confuses publishers. Marvel published Strange Tales until #168, which came out in 1968. Then they turned the comic book into Doctor Strange, which started with #169 and continued until #183.

All well and good. But then, years later, they decided to revive the title Strange Tales in order to house a new strip called "Brother Voodoo," which is now only mentioned when some of us feel the need to embarrass Len Wein. OK, guess what number they started the new run with. #184 might have made some sense. A new #1 might even have been logical. Instead, they started the new run with #169.

So if anyone ever asks you, the late-'60s Doctor Strange series was a continuation of the numbering of Strange Tales. And the early-'70s series of Strange Tales (which later birthed Jim Starlin's Warlock) was also a continuation of the numbering of Strange Tales from the same point. This was done specifically because they knew that, some day, I'd have my comics collection entered into a database and this would screw things up.

Do we think a publisher would hesitate today to put "#1" on a cover? Of course not. But back then, it prompted the kind of debate Mr. Miller mentioned — one which probably included the following talking points:

- Putting #1 on the cover told readers they could start reading the comic book now and not be coming in in the middle of something.
- On the other hand, a #1 issue was an untested commodity. There were probably some kids who assumed that a title that had been around for a while was a "safer" buy, more likely to please.
- On the other hand, some customers might fear that a comic book that had been around for a while was getting stale — that the new comic book was more likely to give you something you hadn't seen before a hundred times.
- On the other hand, a reader might hesitate about making an emotional and/or financial commitment to a new title. The kids who collected Superman could count on its being there next month and the month after and the month after. With a new comic book, especially from a new company, who knew?
- On the other hand, there were all those articles in newspapers and magazines about how a copy of Batman #1 — which had sold originally for 10¢ — was now going for a few hundred dollars! This was big news, and, while the practice was not as widespread as it would later become, there were already those fans who'd buy a few extras of any new first issue to put away.

(Quick aside: For 10 years after those articles started appearing, I don't think I met a single male adult who did not claim that he'd once owned the first 10 issues of Superman, but his mother had thrown them out.)

- On the other hand, there were those problems, just detailed, with distribution of first issues.
- And, still on the same hand, there were postal disadvantages to starting a new comic book.

Magazine subscriptions are usually sent via second-class mail, which saves money but involves meeting certain requirements. At one point, the authorities decided a comic book wasn't a magazine if it didn't contain at least one page of text. That's why comics ran all those text stories that most of us didn't read and which eventually all turned into letter columns.

They also, at times, argued that a comic book didn't quality for second-class mailing privileges unless it contained "other" material, meaning something "other" than the title feature. That's one of the reasons DC ran those wonderful little Casey the Cop and Super-Turtle cartoons by Henry Boltinoff and those public service pages. (The Post Office rulings were arbitrary and inconsistent and were eventually changed. DC was finally able to drop the miscellany, and other companies never needed them at all.)

But mailing second class added a financial imperative to the debate over whether a comic book should start with #1. The Post Office required that the company put up a cash deposit for each magazine. If the publisher dropped one comic book and started another, he had to post another deposit for the new comic book, while waiting months for a refund of his deposit on the canceled title. The Post Office has never been known for its speed.

So the way they'd avoid having to post that new deposit was to keep the numbering going and make the new comic book a continuation of an old comic book. That way, the old deposit could cover the new title. (It also made it easier to shift the subscribers from a cancelled title to a new one.)

This made things financially simpler for the publishers — but it made things impossible for collectors who were trying to amass every issue of a series.

William M. Gaines set new standards of quality and fought legendary battles against censorship with Mad and the E.C. line of comics. But he should also be remembered as a world-class champion of changing the names of comics to avoid paying a new deposit.

In 1947, he started a comic book called Moon Girl and the Prince and dutifully ponied up the deposit to the postal authorities. With the second issue, he changed the title to just plain Moon Girl, but no one complained.

Then, later, he decided to dump poor Moon Girl and to put out a love comic book in her place. To try to sneak it by on the old deposit, he called the new comic book A Moon, a Girl ... Romance and continued the numbering of Moon Girl. That ran through #12, whereupon Gaines decided to drop it and try a science-fiction title. The first issue of Weird Fantasy was, therefore, #13.

He published five issues before they went postal on him and insisted he ante up a new deposit and correct his numbering. As a result, the run of Weird Fantasy goes like this: #13, #14, #15, #16, #17, #6, #7, #8 and so on, on through another #13-17 and beyond.

Gaines tried this on many of his titles. Fat and Slat #1-4 segued to Gunfighter #5-14, which led to Haunt of Fear #15. This time, it took the Post Office only three issues to catch on, so the sequence on Haunt of Fear goes #15,

Point of View

#16, #17, then #4, #5, and so forth.

Gaines was good at weird numbering but others were better. Dell Comics numbered many of its one-shots and tryout issues as numbers of a series called Four-Color Comics. That was a title used within the company, not on the comics — although most of them had a little code number on the first page like "FC 386," which meant it was Four-Color #386. The first whole comic book of Uncle Scrooge was Four-Color #386, the second was #456, and the third was #495. They apparently sold well enough to warrant starting a regular series called Uncle Scrooge, which then started its actual numbering with #4.

Most of the features which appeared in Four-Color didn't graduate to their own titles. As a result, you have anomalies like there being only two issues of Mary Jane & Sniffles, and they're numbered #402 and #474. To make matters more baffling, Dell occasionally skipped numbers — and, when a Four-Color feature graduated to its own comic book, the retroactive numbering wasn't always precise. Woody Woodpecker, for instance, appeared in 16 Four-Color editions, then started his own series with Woody Woodpecker #16.

But the absolute worst was Charlton, which seems to have just assumed that no one would ever attempt to buy every issue of any of their comics, so why bother making the numbering understandable? For example, they started a book called Special War Series that featured three issues of war stories. Then #4 was a whole issue of Judomaster.

In the meantime, they had a comic book called Gunmaster which ran four issues, then was dropped, then was resurrected and continued the numbering of a comic book called Six-Gun Heroes. So the numbering on Gunmaster went #1, #2, #3, #4, #84, #85, #86, #87, #88, and then they turned that book into Judomaster, which ran from #89 until #98. However, just to confuse everyone, they later put out another issue of Gunmaster and numbered it #89.

And, in case that didn't leave collectors (if any) befuddled: After publishing Special War Series #4 with Judomaster, they published Attack #4, which said inside that it was "Formerly Special War Series."

Charlton did this all the time. Lawbreakers turned into Lawbreakers Suspense Stories, which turned into Strange Suspense Stories, eventually becoming Captain Atom. The Thing (no relation to Marvel's) became Blue Beetle, which, in turn, became Mr. Muscles. A comic book called Uncanny Tales also became Blue Beetle for a time, then turned into Ghostly Tales. Mysteries of Unexplored Worlds became Son of Vulcan, then turned into Thunderbolt.

Here's the one that's really confusing, and I defy anyone to read the following aloud and not sound like a babbling idiot. One of the first comics Charlton ever published — if not the first — was Zoo Funnies in 1945. For some reason, its first issue was #101, but then came #2 and normal numbering until after #15, when they changed names and issued Tim McCoy #16.

Tim was a cowboy star but, apparently, not a popular one. As of #21, his comic book changed to Western Movie Stories, and then #22 was Pictorial Love Stories. After four more, it appears to have been canceled — but who knows for certain?

Soon after, they brought back Zoo Funnies with a new #1 and started numbering again. As of #14, this Zoo Funnies turned into Nyoka the Jungle Girl, who had previously appeared in 77 consecutive issues of another comic book for another publisher. In the meantime, Charlton had published Space Adventures from #1 to 21, then changed its name to War at Sea, which began numbering with #22.

Then, a year or so later, they decided to bring back Space Adventures, so they turned the new Nyoka the Jungle Girl book into Space Adventures as of #23. This meant that the first series of Space Adventures ended with #21 and the second series started with #23, which must have perplexed someone.

The second series of Space Adventures — which introduced Steve Ditko's original Captain Atom series — expired with #59. Then, four years later, they published #60. Then, a year later, they started the series up again with #2. It was finally canceled with #13. I think. You know, if Charlton's stories had been half as creative as their numbering, they'd still be around.

I'm tired of all the #1 comics publishers put out these days. As far as I'm concerned, there was only one Fantastic Four #1, and the rest are all impostors. But I'm also glad that they're at least starting with #1 these days. Perhaps, someday, someone in the comic-book industry will learn how to count past 10 without removing his shoes.

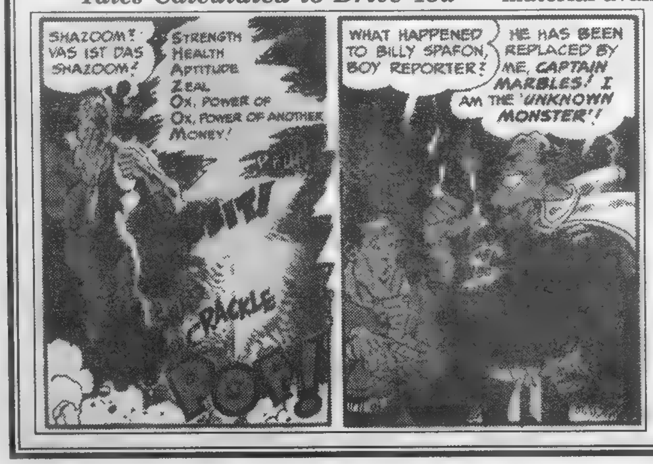
COMICS GUIDE

By Maggie Thompson

As you hike to your comics retailer to pick That Perfect Gift (whether it's from you to you or from you to a friend or loved one), think about buying the following three items in a DC assortment you can fill out with other comics purchases. The point is that these are musts for lots of comics buffs — and other folks, too. (But keep in mind that the last two are preliminary installments and not intended for kids. The first — well, it may not be for kids, either, but evaluate the recipient to see.)

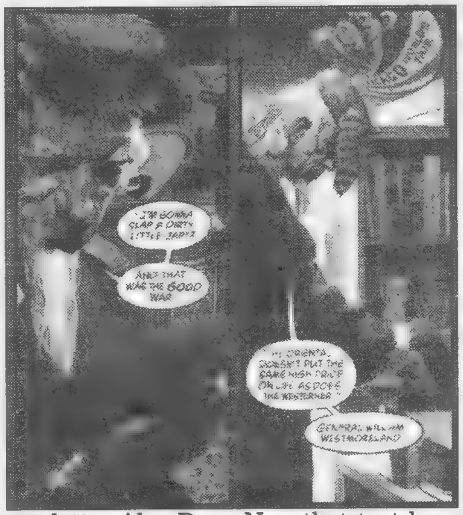
• Tales Calculated to Drive You Mad #2 (Win 97, $3.99) reprints Mad from 1953: #4 (Apr-May), #5 (Jun-Jul), and #6 (Aug-Sep) — issues that came out when Mad was a comic book which thrived from such geniuses as Wally Wood, Bill Elder, John Severin, and Jack Davis — all overseen by mastermind Harvey Kurtzman. Stand-alone parodies tended to focus on comics, so there are wild views of Superman, Blackhawks, Tarzan, and Terry and the Pirates (not to mention The Shadow and Inner Sanctum). Dated? Some – but each panel of this full-color project is packed with goony detail, influential silliness, historical importance, and memorable lines. (The immortal "SHAZOOM!" of Captain Marbles stayed with a generation of Mad buffs.) Where else will you find a cultural artifact of such entertainment value at such a reasonable price?



SHAZOOM! VAS IST DAS SHAZOOM!
STRENGTH HEALTH APTITUDE ZEAL OX, POWER OF OX, POWER OF ANOTHER MONEY!
CRACKLE
WHAT HAPPENED TO BILLY SPAFON, BOY REPORTER?
HE HAS BEEN REPLACED BY ME, CAPTAIN MARBLES! I AM THE 'UNKNOWN MONSTER'!

Many thanks to DC for making this material available again! (#1, obviously, had #1-3; there were 23 comic-book format issues, so fans can look forward to several more treats at $3.99 [Cheap!].)

• For a complete change of tone (in something that is also not to be missed), grab the first issue (of two) of Uncle Sam. Advance looks did not provide the script, and preliminary recommendations were based only on painted pages by co-plotter Alex Ross. Now that text has been added (written by Steve Darnall), the grim social commentary adds another dimension to what was already a riveting view of America and its changes over the century. Its criticisms of society are not cloaked in parody; its indictments of injustices are not funny; its mood is almost unrelievedly grim. But it is, for all that, entertaining — in fact, it's downright compelling. The question remains whether the conclusion will wrap it up with a moral — or simply leave the reader in almost terminal depression. It's thought-provoking and designed to lead the owner to repeated readings. (And, by the way, only its initials appear as the front-cover title.)



I'M GONNA SLAP A DIRTY LITTLE JAP!
AND THAT WAS THE GOOD WAR
GENERAL WILLIAM WESTMORELAND

• Neil Gaiman and Charles Vess' Stardust (#1 of four, $5.95) will start discussions of what makes a comic book and what makes an illustrated story. The sample page above shows the nature of the layouts, with a fairy-tale feel. But a closer look (which may do no good at that size) will reveal gross details (in this case, a bunch of eyeballs) which make it clear this isn't for younger children. Don't read the back cover, which summarizes the issue — but do plan to plunk down the $24 for the complete series, if you or your giftee would enjoy a fairy tale by gifted creators who are clearly having a ball.

I'm always buying and selling comics. I'm especially interested in pre-code horror and old coverless comics. If you collect old comics you should be on my mailing list. Send $1 for my next giant catalog to be shipped in December. Add $5 to each order for shipping and insurance.

COMICS BUYER'S GUIDE

COMICS STRIP

COMICS STRIP changes the way you and the consumer think about advertisements and allows you to display your talents to the Comics Buyer's Guide readers in a format that you and they love the best.

We do ask in the spirit of the comic-strip that your material be suitable (sorry, no profanity, nudity or extreme violence) for all ages.

Each COMICS STRIP is 2-5/8"h x 10"w, and it's within this creative framework that the fun really begins. You'll use at least 3/4 of the space to tell a strip joke, one-panel funny or other attention grabbing notion using sequential art. You'll want to use the remaining 1/4 to promote your actual publication.

Below is a example of how your strip might look...

'Frank Frazetta Fantasy Illustrated' firms up February release

> "No one of any age will be excluded from purchasing this magazine, but it will certainly satisfy our adult readers."
> — James Breitbeil

On the facing page is the cover of Frank Frazetta Fantasy Illustrated #1. The logoless version, provided by the folks at Frank Frazetta Fantasy Illustrated, appeared on the cover of CBG #1249.

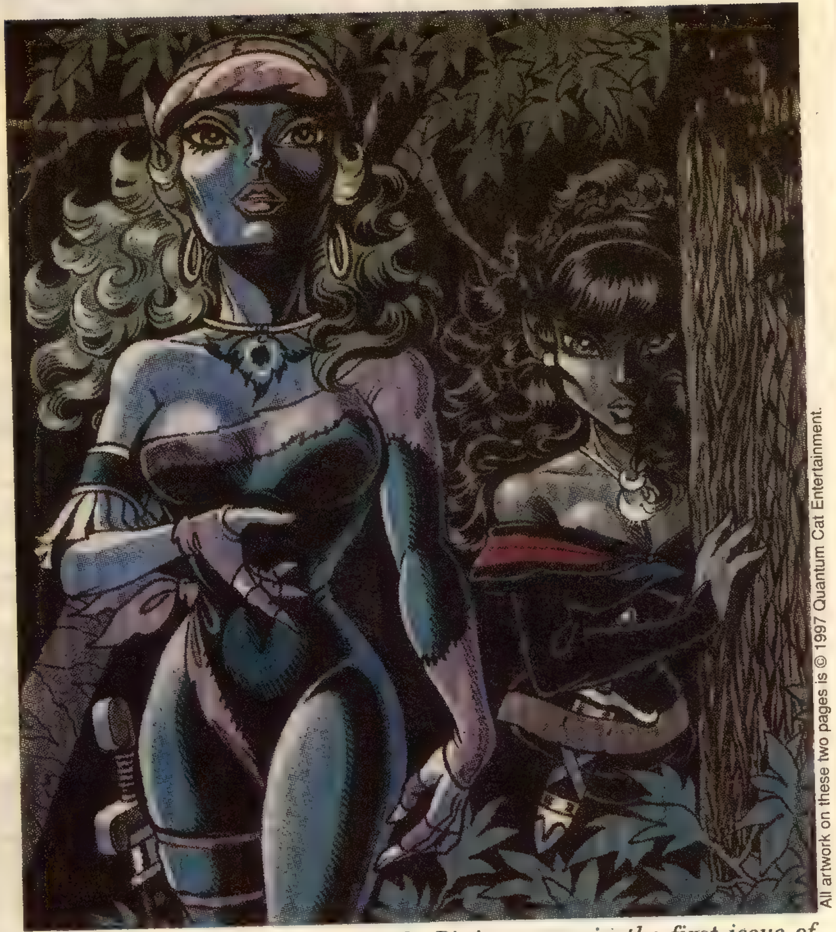
The February release date for the first issue of Frank Frazetta Fantasy Illustrated is getting closer. For those who didn't read CBG #1249 or to refresh the memories of those who did — Frank Frazetta Fantasy Illustrated is a 100-page full-color illustrated fantasy magazine scheduled to ship Feb. 11.

The first issue features original stories from Joe Jusko, Joe Linsner, Richard Corben, Tony Daniel, and William Stout. David Mack and Wendy Pini are contributing original Kabuki and Elfquest stories, as well. And Alex Orlandelli, an Italian artist was recently added. Publisher Joe Kingsley said, "Alex is painting a saga written by Elio Leone that will be continued throughout future issues. His style is cutting edge, and we feel that he will be a great fit for our magazine."

All of the stories in the first issue are original, a number of them featuring new character introductions from established creators. Artists and writers contributing to Frank Frazetta Fantasy Illustrated will have the opportunity to exercise their creativity and introduce new storylines and creations. Co-Publisher James Breitbeil said, "We will push the envelope as far as content is concerned. No one of any age will be excluded from purchasing this magazine, but it will certainly satisfy our adult readers. Frank has left his sizable imprint on the artworld as a whole — and, with his involvement, we are dedicated to providing top-notch, ground-breaking artwork and stories in every issue."

Frank Frazetta is a name that is recognized throughout the comics, fantasy, and broader artistic worlds. His paintings have appeared in comics and on book covers and movie posters worldwide. His influences are broad-based and can be noted in the work of countless other artists. Kingsley added, "This magazine is really a tribute to Frank Frazetta. The response from the artistic community has been overwhelming and certainly appreciated. Frank's covers set the tone for the quality of the artwork in the interior of every issue. Everyone involved is providing their absolute best work, and I, my partners, and, most importantly, Frank himself, will be very pleased with the finished product."

Frazetta's paintings have touched the lives of a wide array of people. David Winiewicz, doctor of medieval philosophy and an authority on the art and career of Frazetta has been quoted as saying: Frank Frazetta deserves to be ranked with the greatest artists in history. His greatest paintings can hang comfortably in any of the world's best museums. For more than 50 years Frazetta has sustained the very highest levels of creative excellence and established a body of work that has set the standard against which all other imaginative work is judged. The depth, breadth, and clarity of Frazetta's imagination is truly one of the wonders of the art world. His influence has been profound, pervasive, and enduring. The power and distinctive quality of his art made his worldwide fame inevitable.



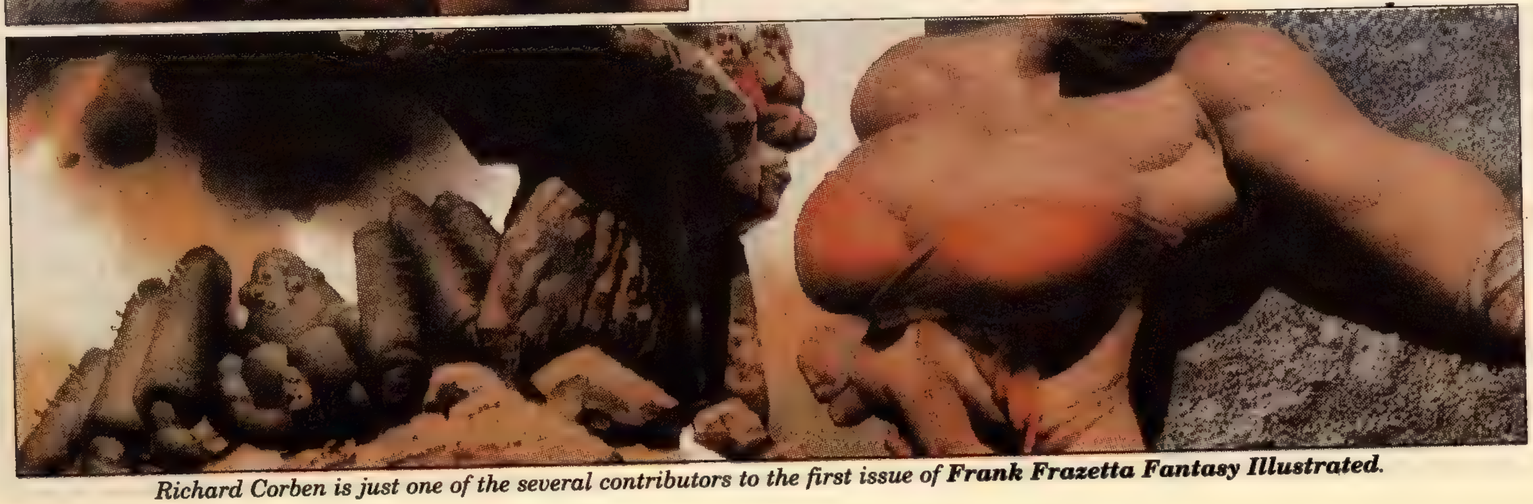
All artwork on these two pages is © 1997 Quantum Cat Entertainment.

A new Elfquest story by Wendy Pini appears in the first issue of Frank Frazetta Fantasy Illustrated.

The range of stories in issue #1 encompasses many different worlds. Kingsley said, "The stories in issue #1 fill an entire spectrum with their variety. From Wendy Pini's Elfquest tale to Elio Leone's violent portrayal of another world inside our own, each story brings the reader into the minds of their respective creators. For example, Dawn creator Joe Linsner is providing a new creation he described as 'a surreal science-fiction, psychological odyssey.' Linsner is also producing an original painted cover that will be sold as a limited edition alternate to retailers who order a minimum amount from Diamond."

For readers looking for a range of ideas and artistic styles, Frank Frazetta Fantasy Illustrated is something to check. Breitbeil said, "This one magazine will satisfy the needs and tastes of many different audiences, from fans of such comics as Elfquest, Kabuki, and Dawn to followers of legendary fantasy artists like Richard Corben. We are in the process of filling issue #3 and we are very pleased with our content in the first two issues. Issue #2 will feature Larry Elmore, The Brothers Hildebrandt, Joe Madureira, Moebius, Tony Harris, Elio Leone and Alex Horley, and a new fantasy text story from Alan Dean Foster. The overwhelming majority (90%) of the artwork featured in each issue will be painted, giving the magazine a fluent, dramatic quality."

Frank Frazetta Fantasy Illustrated will be published on a quarterly basis with issue #1 on sale Feb. 11 and issue #2 in stores April 29. The publisher is currently soliciting international reproduction rights, and advertising is welcomed with limited space available.



Richard Corben is just one of the several contributors to the first issue of Frank Frazetta Fantasy Illustrated.

the Holiday SHELF

Your one-stop guide to things on and under the Christmas tree!

This year's Mickey-themed ornaments:

Mickey's Snow Angel,

Goofy's Ski Adventure,

Bandleader Mickey

Mickey's Long Shot

Also available: Donald's Surprising Gift and Minnie in New Pair of Skates. The Hallmark ornaments retail for between $9.95 and $13.95.

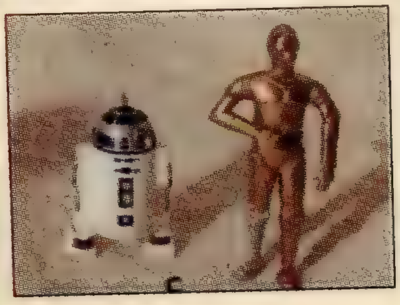
Hallmark branches out with licensed-character ornaments

By Marc Patten

What's a Christmas without ornaments? That's like getting coal in your stocking or the oil burning for only seven days in your menorah during Hanukkah. The company which started it all in licensed character ornaments is Hallmark — and it has a huge selection this year.

In the Star Trek line, the company is offering Commander Data sitting at the helm of the Enterprise from Star Trek: The Next Generation ($14.95), Dr. McCoy standing in the transporter from Star Trek ($14.95), and the spaceship Defiant from Star Trek: Deep Space Nine with blinking lights that plug into any standard Christmas lights array ($24).

Star Wars is everywhere this year, and Hallmark continues its second year with this golden license by offering Luke Skywalker in Bespin fatigues holding an extended lightsaber ($13.95) and Jedi Master Yoda ($9.95) as its first figural ornaments. An electronic plug in a Darth Vader ornament with a glowing light saber talks when prompted, announcing, "The Force is with you, young Skywalker, but you are not a Jedi yet!" and is available for $24.



Disney's movie ornaments include characters and scenes from Cinderella, Snow White, The Lion King (Timon and Pumba), Aladdin (Jasmine with Aladdin), The Hunchback (Phoebus and Esmeralda), The Little Mermaid (Ariel), Hercules, and 101 Dalmatians. (Two-Tone). See the sidebar on this page for Hallmark's selection of Mickey Mouse ornaments.

Not to be left out is everyone's favorite bear (no, not Yogi — he comes later), Winnie the Pooh, as both a mini-ornament for $6.95 and with Piglet waiting for Santa for $12.95.

There are no DC Comics characters from Hallmark this year, but Marvel continues with The Incredible Hulk leaping into action taken from a modern image for $12.95. Other cartoon characters available from Hallmark are: Howdy Doody; Michigan J. Frog; Tazmanian Devil spinning around a Christmas tree containing Daffy Duck and, perched on top, Tweety; Mr. Potato Head (Mr. Potato Head?); and a miniature Lone Ranger Lunch Box that really opens (although the most it probably holds is a tiny cookie).

Think Hallmark is the only card company with exclusive character ornaments around? Guess again. The Carlton card company is not to be ignored. Figural pop-culture ornaments include: Charlie Chaplin ($17.95), Elvis in Juke Box ($30), and even the Pillsbury Dough Boy ($14.95) originally designed by Golden Age Green Lantern creator Marty Nodell.

Cartoon and comic-strip characters include: Betty Boop ($22), Nancy and Sluggo ($15.95), Rocky and Bullwinkle ($15.95), and Tom and Jerry ($15.95).

Don't forget the previously reported Marvel Comics Storm ornament from Creative License and Lady Death, Purgatory ($16.95 each), and Chaos! Shield ($14.95) ornaments from Moore Creations and Chaos Comics.

Speed Racer inspires stocking stuffers for a new generation. In addition to its revival of the old Aurora monster model kits, Playing Mantis is also serving baby-boomers and their kids with a line of miniature die-cast metal cars based on the old Speed Racer cartoon series. Thirty years after its debut in this country, the show, which gave American viewers an early taste of anime, is again being regularly broadcast on the Cartoon Channel. Playing Mantis' line, released under the trademark of Johnny Lightning is the first time cars from the series have been available.

The 1:64th-scale cars include Speed Racer's own Mach 5, Racer X's Shooting Star, the Assassin, and the GRX: Fastest Car. Each has chrome-rimmed wheels and comes packaged with a blister card featuring the cartoon version of the same car. For the baby-boomer collectors, each package also contains one of 20 different animation cels from the cartoons. All 20 cels are numbered and are randomly inserted. Each car has a suggested retail price of $2.49.

Bowen releases Lovecraft nightmare before Christmas. Bowen Designs has gone back into production with its limited-edition Cthulhu statue — too late for Halloween, but scheduled for a pre-Christmas release. The statue was designed by famed science-fiction illustrator Stephen Hickman, based on H.P. Lovecraft's story The Call of Cthulhu. Each is 7 1/2" tall and is mounted on dark hardwood. The statues are hand-finished in a faux patina to give the impression of an "other-worldly" metal. Each has a suggested retail price of $100.

Only 1000 statues were originally produced for a projected edition of 2000 when the product was originally released in August of 1996. Now, Bowen Designs has gone back to the master molds to complete the limited edition.

A bronze edition limited to 25 pieces is also available for a suggested retail price of $1200.

The one and only Dark Horse Christmas list

[Editor's note: When staffers at Dark Horse Comics received CBG's request for holiday gift suggestions — including neat items from Dark Horse's own projects — they came up with these responses:]

Dave Land
Editor

What I recommend: Land of Nod #1 and #2 — 'Cause it's the best freakin' comic Dark Horse has ever put out.

What I want: A Hellboy Zippo Lighter — so I have something to burn all other comics with.

Jamie S. Rich
Editor

I will be giving people the Usagi Yojimbo: Shades of Death and Concrete: Think like a Mountain trade paperbacks, because both are the sorts of comics that can change misconceptions that comics aren't intelligent reading on par with other forms of popular entertainment. I also would buy any music fans I know every issue of Red Rocket 7 that I can get my hands on, because there is no better comic book about music in existence today. Not to mention it's a great science-fiction adventure, as well.

The Jack Kirby Portfolio: This deluxe item was a genuine labor of love. It collects five pieces of Kirby's most personal art. These outstanding works, which explore religious themes from the unique Kirby perspective, have hung on the walls of the Kirby home for many years. Jack considered them to be "gallery pieces" and was not particularly interested in seeing them reproduced. When Mike Richardson and I were discussing possible projects with Rosalind Kirby, it occurred to me that these pictures deserved to be made available to collectors, but only if presented in a very high-end, deluxe package. Designer Brian Gogolin worked very hard to achieve this look, arriving at an oversized leatherette embossed portfolio case that handsomely stores the works. The edition was limited to only 500.

When I went down to collect the pieces (literally taking them off the livingroom walls), I brought along a former museum curator and gallery owner to supervise. We discovered that Jack had not cared very much about archival framing materials! Therefore, we retained Mike Richardson's expert framer to reframe the pieces after they had been shot for reproduction. I went down again to do an interview with Roz for marketing purposes (assisted by old Kirby friends Dave Stevens and Bruce Jones), and portions of Roz' comments were placed on an additional plate of the portfolio, which Roz was gracious enough to sign for the numbered edition. Also during that visit, Kirby family friend Mike Thibodeaux discovered a large photocopy of the original pencils to three of the images. These were included as yet another plate.

There are fewer than 100 copies of this portfolio in stock, and they are quietly disappearing as collectors finally get around to purchasing one.

The portfolio was nominated for an Eisner Award for best comics-related product this year, but unfortunately did not capture the prize. Given the vast love and esteem the industry holds for the Kirbys, I could hardly think of a finer gift item for anyone with an interest in the field, be they fan or pro!

❄ The Art of Comic-Book Inking trade paperback by Gary Martin and Steve Rude.

It's great for your library of comics how-to books and it comes with Bristol board with blue line art of a Rude Nexus illustration to practice on!

❄ Eno & Plum trade paperback by Terry Laban. A wonderful black and white collection.

❄ Flaming Carrot Comics: Wild Shall Wild Remain trade paperback by Bob Burden. The second in a series collecting the classic, out-of-print comics.

❄ Batman/Aliens trade paperback by Ron Marz and Bernie Wrightson, with a fantastic introduction by Frank Darabont (the writer and director of The Shawshank Redemption and good friend of Wrightson).

❄ Usagi Yojimbo: Shades of Death by Stan Sakai. A trade paperback companion of a limited edition that's already sold out. It has great design, a humorous intro by Bill Stout, and a darned good comic-book story, to boot.

There are far too many Dark Horse products on my want list to name all of them. Dark Horse has, along with DC, the best backlist in the industry, keeping a ton of first-rate comics in print. I don't believe any other company can match the diversity of Dark Horse's collections or consistently put out and keep available some of the best comics ever. But as far as personal favorites, I'd like to someday have on my bookshelf the complete collections of Grendel, Usagi Yojimbo, Hellboy, Sin City, Nexus, and Martha Washington, among others.

I think that I'm one of those lucky guys who can do all my holiday shopping while at work. Not only can I choose from one of the strongest backlists in the industry, but there's a whole boatload of new stuff coming out before the holidays. The real Santa Claus should be so lucky.

I couldn't come up with a better present for my 86-year-old mother than The Big Guy and Rusty the Boy Robot jigsaw puzzle. She doesn't really need anything but is getting tired of putting together all those puzzles of buildings and fruit.

For my nephew it just has to be the Age of Reptiles: Carnivores limited edition litho. I'm getting concerned that he doesn't have enough big nasty meat-eating critters on his bedroom wall and I'm sure his mother will dig the dinos, too. I may even throw in a Hellboy baseball hat for him to cement my reputation as the coolest uncle on the planet.

It's been worrying me that my yoga-teaching sister is always having trouble locating the matches she needs to fire up her incense. I think I'll give her one of those boss Sin City Zippo lighters from Kady's Pecos Club. That'll surely light her fire.

For the nieces I'll be buying Gunsmith Cats wristwatches. I can guarantee that these will make them forget their digital pets for at least a week! Apologies in advance to the Cyber SPCA.

For my mean big brother with the bad eyesight I have the perfect gift — the Big Damn Hard Boiled. When we were young he used to run the edge of his sneakers across my head. I sure hope those through-the-head shots in the Big Damn Hard Boiled don't give him any funny ideas.

All of my old hippie buddies are gonna pop their paisleys when they wake up to find I left copies of the Eno & Plum trade paperback for them. Terry LaBan has gotta be the R. Crumb of the whatever generation.

Now the guy who usually proves the toughest to find a gift for — my father-in-law. I'll be giving him one of those Death Dealer cold-cast figures — which will not only prove that I think enough of him to give the very best but also that his daughter married a fella with taste to spare.

Last, but certainly not least, are the stocking stuffers. At only 10 bucks, I can afford to drop a copy of Sin City: Family Values into every stocking (including the fishnets) hanging from the mantle. Or maybe Mike Mignola's illustrated novel Hellboy: The Lost Army.

I've only been at Dark Horse a short time, and everyone in my family is waiting for the Christmas goods to roll in, so they can proudly say "Our little girl reads comics at work all day." Their opinion of my job may not be too accurate, but they seem to know I'm the one in the family to milk for cool presents. Here goes:

For my brother, to whom I owe my love for comics, The Complete Concrete by Paul Chadwick. A big, sweet hulk for a big, sweet hulk. And a Sin City Bouncer T-shirt.

For my sister-in-law, a Gunsmith Cats wristwatch, because even girls who rock need to know what time it is, and What's Michael: Living Together, because all girls like fuzzy little kitties.

Since there's no Dark Horse daily pill sorter, I guess my parents will get our cool black logo T-shirts.

For my husband's occasional bouts with cancer sticks, I'll nab him a Dark Horse Zippo. I don't smoke, but I have a thing for illegal fireworks, so I'll be treating myself to a Gunsmith Cats Zippo. Fire is cool.

Geof Darrow's The Big Guy and Rusty the Boy Robot jigsaw puzzle is at the top of my list. I plan on buying one for myself and several for friends. I think Geof's highly detailed work will make an amazing (and way fun) puzzle.

❄ Issue #25 of X-Wing Rogue Squadron. Why? Because it's a 48-page, stand-alone story that features the best elements of both Star Wars and comics storytelling. Epic, moving, and thrilling — and artist Steve Crespo is truly one of the industry's greatest hidden talents.

❄ The Dark Horse logo shirt with the reflective ink. It's subtle and cool.

❄ The Blade of the Immortal collection. Hands down, some of the best comics art of our time and an intriguing story, to boot. I imagine that, as the series continues (and continues to grow in popularity), we'll see legions of fans participating in a countdown to the final, thousandth evil man slain.

❄ Fax from Sarajevo. This book has a timeless quality to it and is one of the most evocative graphic narratives I've ever read. Sorta uplifting, too.

TONY'S TIPS!
BY TONY ISABELLA

"Heap on more wood! the wind is chill,
But let it whistle as it will,- We'll keep our Christmas merry still."
— Sir Walter Scott, Marmion

"One of the scariest things about this year's Halloween was seeing Santa Claus side-by-side with ghoulies and ghosties on the shelves at our local Kmart."
— Tony Isabella

OK, yeah, it's true. The retailers do start the Christmas shopping season a little earlier every year. One of the scariest things about this year's Halloween was seeing Santa Claus side-by-side with ghoulies and ghosties on the shelves at our local Kmart. Holidays, it seems, also make for strange bedfellows.

I don't know if it was a conscious decision for the newspapers around here to start running the kind of feel-good stories usually reserved for December, but, within the course of a couple days last week, I read five such stories. What can I say? I'm a sentimental kind of guy. Let me tell you about them. In those states where it isn't a felony, we can then ask each other the musical question, "Can you feel the love tonight?"

☞ From the Akron Beacon-Journal, comes the story of one Betty Hatala, 18, all smiles and curly brown hair, who got an early Christmas present this year. She got a family.

Betty's new family includes Nancy Hatala, a teaching assistant who works with multi-handicapped children, Nancy's two biological daughters, two stepsons, and 13 other foster children who still call or drop by. Betty has been in foster homes since she was 8. She was put under Nancy's care a little more than a year ago and the two hit it off immediately.

"I've mainly cared for teen-age foster children who, by the time they get here, have already been through a lot," said Nancy, "I try to show them that there can be stability and a lot of love at home."

Children's Services and the courts had to speed through the red tape to finalize the adoption before Betty's Nov. 13 birthday. As an adult, the young woman would no longer have been eligible for adoption. The process usually takes three to four months, but the powers that be agreed to make an exception after Betty wrote a plan outlining her goals for the future.

"I've wanted this more than anything else for a long time," Betty said through her tears at her birthday party. "Finally, I have a place to call home."

☞ This one comes from the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Good jobs are hard to find in Cleveland's Ohio City, a West Side neighborhood where the poverty rate is 60%. That has changed for the better with the September opening of a new Dave's Supermarket, the seventh in the chain.

The store has hired 93 people from the neighborhood, 78 of them previously unemployed or stuck in low-income jobs. Many of these new jobs are part-time, but even the part-time workers are in union-scale jobs with health-care benefits and a pension plan. Union officials praise the operation and its owners.

Dave's is owned by the Saltzman family. Great-grandfather Alex Saltzman got his start with a horse and wagon, selling fruit up and down the street. This new store is the biggest commercial project in Ohio City in 20 years.

Dave's new employees are a mirror of the neighborhood: black, white, and Hispanic. Some live in women's shelters, the YMCA, or low-rent rooming houses. But their employer doesn't care if they are down and out, only if they are good workers. Not surprisingly, the Dave's environment brings out the best in everyone who works there. It's a class operation which serves "everyone from the very-low-income customer to the upscale yuppie and a very broad range of ethnic and cultural groups, as well."

Hmm, I wonder if the Saltzman family could get the financing to put in a bid on Marvel Comics.

☞ The Associated Press carried a story about the new mayor of Stone Mountain, Ga., a former Ku Klux Klan hotbed. That office, once held by an imperial wizard of the Klan, is now filled by Chuck Burris, a black man elected with biracial support. The voters in the community of 6500 liked his plans to build new sidewalks and add more police. Burris thinks this city of historic sites, quaint shops, and restaurants is ready to move away from its past and into a future as a tourism spot.

Burris lives with his wife in a two-story brick home bought from the family of former Klan wizard and mayor James R. Venable. Several years ago, when Burris first ran for City Council, Venable let him put campaign signs on his lawn.

☞ As reported in the Beacon-Journal, more than a dozen Canton, Ohio, teenagers and two adults who work at a Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurant are having money deducted from their paychecks to help pay for gifts and food for the family of a slain cabdriver.

Six teens were charged in connection with the murder of the driver and his passenger. Five have pleaded guilty on various charges, and the sixth will be tried early next year.

The KFC crew decided to give the money to the cabdriver's family after their manager, who is divorced from the sister of the victim's widow, suggested it. "She had a negative attitude about teenagers," the manager said. "I work with a lot of really good kids. I wanted her to know there are some good kids out there."

☞ Homosexuality remains one of the most controversial issues in our churches today. The Rev. J. Philip Wogaman, a United Methodist minister, is working to resolve differences between the gay and the religious communities. It's a debate that will clearly not arrive at a conclusion for years to come. But Wogaman will not condone anyone denying God's love for all his children.

Wogaman tells the story of a young man who had struggled with his homosexuality all his life and was dying of AIDS. His parents feared they would not see their son in heaven. Their pastor told the dying man that if he didn't change he would go to hell.

In the last days of that young man's life, his mother sat by his side, cradling his head in her arms, and cooling his forehead with a damp washcloth.

"I found myself thinking, That's the love of God," Wogaman told his listeners. "We don't know the mind of God, but we do know that God loves these gay people even more than their mothers and fathers do."

☞ When I started writing this column, I planned to include the usual suggestions for Christmas gifts. There were some good items on my desk, too. But, their spiffiness notwithstanding, they pale next to the gifts given by all those good people I've just had the honor of telling you about.

The gifts of love. A new family. New hope. Brotherhood. Aid to the grieving. Comfort to the dying.

We'll talk about the comics-related gifts next week.

Letters of comment on this column can be sent to: Tony's Tips, P.O. Box 1502, Medina, OH 44258.

This section features listings for retail comics stores around the world. Traveling comics collectors of all types search for new stores to dig through on their vacations, business trips, etc. Advertise your establishment here, including approximately ten words of miscellaneous description, for only $3.50 an issue. You can buy this space in increments of 26 or 52 issues, for $91.00 or $182.00 respectively. Send in your store name, address, phone number, and approximately ten words of description, along with your payment. If you stock Comics Buyer's Guide we'll put your listing in boldface type.

☐ 1 year $182.00 (52 issues) ☐ 6 months $91.00 (26 issues)

Send your listing with payment to: Comics Buyer's Guide

SUPER TRADERS

Super Trader ads are available for $108.00 each. Super Traders are designed by the advertiser on 8-1/2" x 8-1/2" paper. We reduce the ad to 5" x 5" size. Super Trader ads are a low cost form of advertising. Because of this, CBG does not typeset, screen photos, add logos, artwork or credit card symbols to Super Trader ads.

TRADERS

Trader ads are available for $40.00 each. Traders are designed by the advertiser on 8-1/2" x 8-1/2" paper. We reduce the ad to 3-1/4" x 3-1/4" size. Trader ads are a low cost form of advertising. Because of this, CBG does not typeset, screen photos, add logos, artwork or credit card symbols to Trader ads.

TRADERS

Trader ads are available for $40.00 each. Traders are designed by the advertiser on 8-1/2" x 8-1/2" paper. We reduce the ad to 3-1/4" x 3-1/4" size. Trader ads are a low cost form of advertising. Because of this, CBG does not typeset, screen photos, add logos, artwork or credit card symbols to Trader ads.

TRADERS

Trader ads are available for $40.00 each. Traders are designed by the advertiser on 8-1/2" x 8-1/2" paper. We reduce the ad to 3-1/4" x 3-1/4" size. Trader ads are a low cost form of advertising. Because of this, CBG does not typeset, screen photos, add logos, artwork or credit card symbols to Trader ads.

HOW TO PLACE COMICS TRADER ADS AND GET THE MOST SPACE FOR YOUR ADVERTISING DOLLAR!!!

The better looking and easier to read your Comics Trader ad is, the better your response will be. Here are some tips on making your ad effective.

*Do not use small letters. Each 8½" x 8½" sheet is reduced to fit a single Comics Trader Box. If you use small letters before reduction, the copy may be illegible after it is reduced.

*Faxing your ad to us may result in copy that is difficult to read. If there is a problem with your fax transmission we will notify you. This may result in the ad being delayed.

*When typing your ad use clean white paper and a dark ribbon.

*Include ordering information, postage rates, name, address and telephone numbers in your ad. This leaves no questions unanswered and avoids delays.

*New advertisers must supply CBG with current street address and phone number to avoid delay. If you choose not to list your phone number in your ad, you still must provide CBG with your phone number for our records.

TRADERS

Trader ads are available for $40.00 each. Traders are designed by the advertiser on 8-1/2" x 8-1/2" paper. We reduce the ad to 3-1/4" x 3-1/4" size. Trader ads are a low cost form of advertising. Because of this, CBG does not typeset, screen photos, add logos, artwork or credit card symbols to Trader ads.

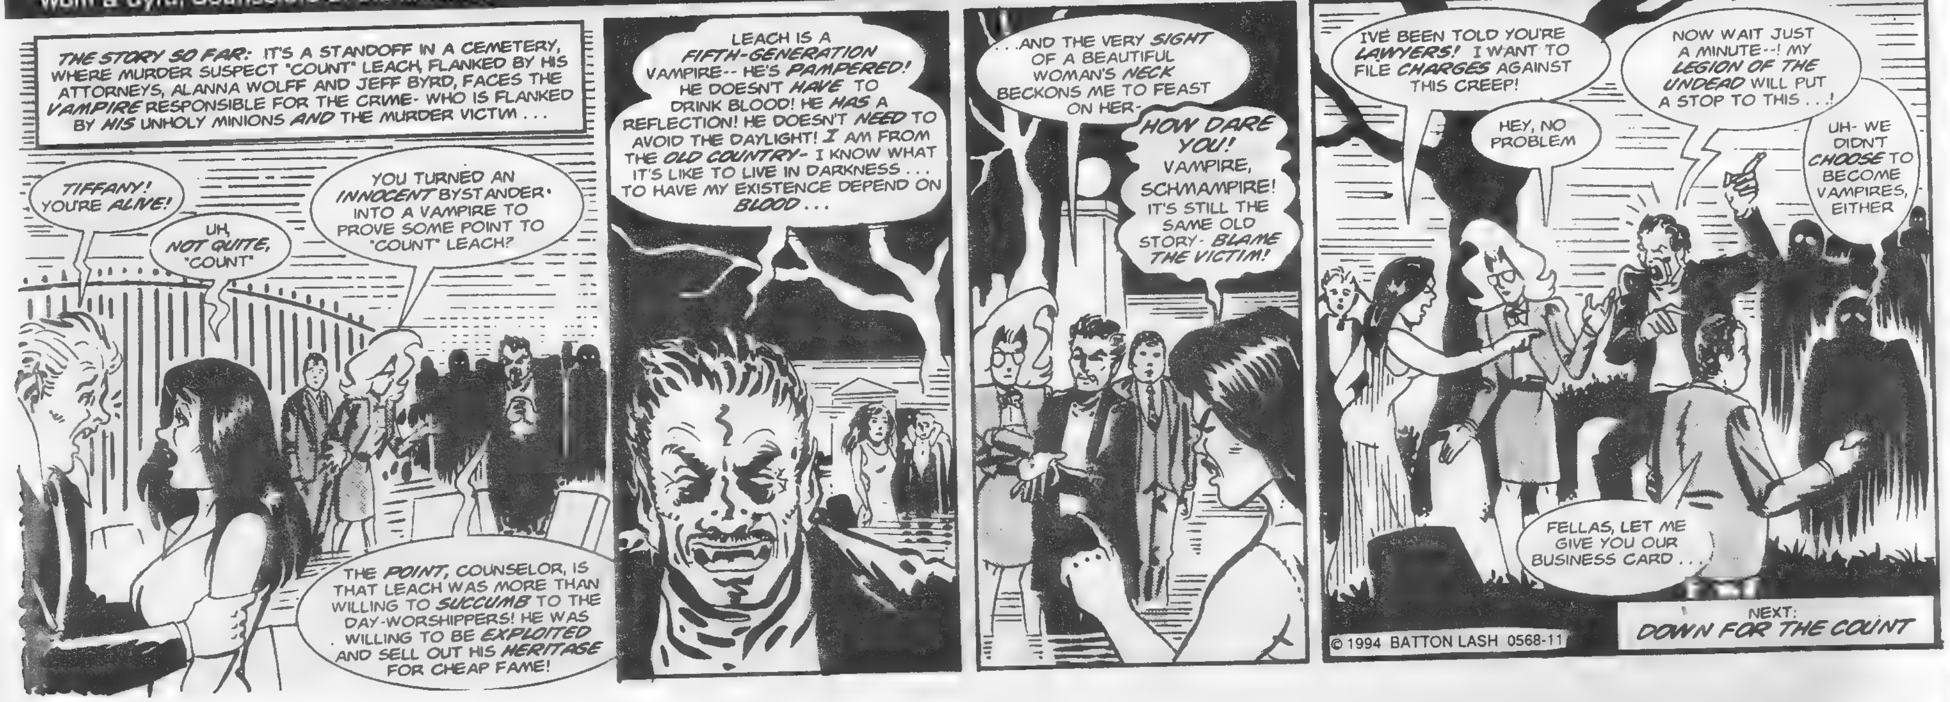
Wolff & Byrd, Counselors of the Macabre

By Batton Lash



THE STORY SO FAR: IT'S A STANDOFF IN A CEMETERY, WHERE MURDER SUSPECT "COUNT" LEACH, FLANKED BY HIS ATTORNEYS, ALANNA WOLFF AND JEFF BYRD, FACES THE VAMPIRE RESPONSIBLE FOR THE CRIME- WHO IS FLANKED BY HIS UNHOLY MINIONS AND THE MURDER VICTIM . . .
TIFFANY! YOU'RE ALIVE!
UH, NOT QUITE, "COUNT"
YOU TURNED AN INNOCENT BYSTANDER INTO A VAMPIRE TO PROVE SOME POINT TO "COUNT" LEACH?
THE POINT, COUNSELOR, IS THAT LEACH WAS MORE THAN WILLING TO SUCCUMB TO THE DAY-WORSHIPPERS! HE WAS WILLING TO BE EXPLOITED AND SELL OUT HIS HERITAGE FOR CHEAP FAME!
LEACH IS A FIFTH-GENERATION VAMPIRE-- HE'S PAMPERED! HE DOESN'T HAVE TO DRINK BLOOD! HE HAS A REFLECTION! HE DOESN'T NEED TO AVOID THE DAYLIGHT! I AM FROM THE OLD COUNTRY- I KNOW WHAT IT'S LIKE TO LIVE IN DARKNESS . . . TO HAVE MY EXISTENCE DEPEND ON BLOOD . . .
. . .AND THE VERY SIGHT OF A BEAUTIFUL WOMAN'S NECK BECKONS ME TO FEAST ON HER-
HOW DARE YOU! VAMPIRE, SCHMAMPIRE! IT'S STILL THE SAME OLD STORY- BLAME THE VICTIM!
I'VE BEEN TOLD YOU'RE LAWYERS! I WANT TO FILE CHARGES AGAINST THIS CREEP!
HEY, NO PROBLEM
NOW WAIT JUST A MINUTE--! MY LEGION OF THE UNDEAD WILL PUT A STOP TO THIS . . .!
UH- WE DIDN'T CHOOSE TO BECOME VAMPIRES, EITHER
FELLAS, LET ME GIVE YOU OUR BUSINESS CARD . . .

DIGRESS

six hours (the first 27 episodes) of the Superman radio series, digitally restored and remastered. Superman began on radio in February 1940, voiced by Bud Collyer (who would continue as Superman's voice in the classic Max Fleischer cartoons). Collyer developed such wonderful techniques as dropping an octave, from tenor to baritone, in mid-sentence to indicate to the radio audience that the change was occurring, as he would announce, "This is a job ... for ... Superman." Not only was the radio series the first dramatization of Superman's adventures, but it featured crossovers (Superman rescued Batman and Robin) and added such vital aspects of continuity as kryptonite.

Part of the Smithsonian Historical Performances series, Superman on Radio is colorfully packaged and also includes a 60-page booklet with commentary, photos, and other neat items. Not especially hard to find, either; I picked mine up in the local Borders Books.

11. Dark Horse comics collections — For the Aliens fans out there, there's an assortment of collections from the various Dark Horse limited series of the same name. It's particularly timely, considering the release of Alien Resurrection. For the Ellison fans who may want to make the transition from the White Wolf books to comics (or vice versa), there are collections of Harlan Ellison's Dream Corridor. And for the utterly demented, there's my vote for the nuttiest title of a crossover ever: Tarzan vs. Predator at the Earth's Core by no less talents than Lee Weeks and Walt Simonson.

You know what I'd love to see? Tarzan vs. The Phantom. Imagine Tarzan coming across the Skull Cave or catching the eye of Diana Palmer. Imagine Tarzan and the Phantom against the legions of Opar. Man, I'd pay serious money for that puppy.

12. Betty Boop — The Definitive Collection. A boxed set of eight tapes featuring, well, the definitive collection of Betty Boop, who was a cartoon sex symbol way before Madonna became one.

13. Electronic Imperial At At Walker — It's big! It's electronic, with seven real noises or phrases from the movies! It comes with exclusive commander and driver figures! It falls over, if you wrap a shoelace around the legs! You can't pass this up! (Well, yeah, you can, but you'd be missing out!)

14. Mystery Science Theater 3000 — A boxed set of tapes featuring an episode with series originator Joel Hodgson and two with replacement Mike Nelson, as Joel, Mike, and the robots tear apart such clunkers as Red Zone Cuba, The Atomic Brain, and (my favorite) I Accuse My Parents.

15. Dying to Be Heard — I've mentioned it previously, but I'll mention it again. Bill Mumy (complete with a photo of Bill with the Minbari bone on his head) has a nifty CD out featuring an assortment of good songs including the nicely ironic "The Ballad of William Robinson." Available from Infinite Visions (800) 755-8735.

16. Riverdance Live from New York — A much better tape than the previous concert in Dublin. Has nothing at all to do with comics, but, hey, I liked it. Sue me.

What one gift would I most like to receive? Peace of mind. Still looking. Still haven't found it. Will let you know if I do.

Peter David, writer of stuff, can be written to at To Be Continued Inc., P.O. Box 239, Bayport, NY 11705.

The advertisers' index is provided as a reader service. Occasional last minute changes may result in ads appearing on pages other than those listed here. The publisher assumes no liability for omissions or errors.

GENERAL INFORMATION

A. PAYMENT: Ads must be accompanied by payment. You may pay with a check, money order, or credit card.

B. CREDIT CARDS: We will accept the following credit cards: VISA, MasterCard, American Express, Discover.

C. DEADLINE: For all advertising is 4:00 p.m. each Tuesday, unless otherwise stated on deadline card.

D. TERMS: Cash with copy only. All advertisers must provide information for the confidential use of the publisher should questions arise.

E. CONTRACT RATES are available for 6, 13, 26, or 52 consecutive issues. Contract rates apply to fulfillment of contract items. Cancellation of a contract by the advertiser allows the publisher to reinvoice covered ads at the earned rate. This rate card is a part of the advertising contract.

F. MINORS are required to furnish a statement of responsibility from their parent or guardian before their advertising can be accepted.

G. ERRORS: Typewritten copy is recommended. The publisher is not responsible for errors resulting from long-hand or illegible copy, or changes submitted by telephone. The publisher's liability for any error shall not exceed the cost of the space occupied by that error.

H. LAYOUT and design services are provided by Krause Publications for advertisers who do not submit camera-ready copy. Due to the creative and subjective nature of these services, credit will not be allowed for conceptual variations.

I. GRADING: Items offered in any ad must be properly described as to condition, conforming to the standards set forth in Comics Buyer's Guide Price Guide. Advertisers may also exercise the option of grading offerings by applying a unique personal system, providing the standards applied are detailed in the ad to avoid confusion.

J. RETURN PRIVILEGE: Except as otherwise specified in any ad, an advertiser must accept the return of any merchandise postmarked within ten working days of its receipt by a customer.

K. P.O. BOX ADS are allowed, but the permanent home address, phone number and place of business of the advertiser must be filed with the publisher before advertisements may be printed.

L. SPECIAL PAGE POSITIONS are available at a premium, inquire for details.

M. ADVERTISING AGENCIES: There are no agency discounts.

N. CAMERA READY display ads qualify for a 15% discount. Copy must be ready for camera without additional paste-up or film work required. No charge for reproductions, enlargements or mail response key change. Classified Display, Comics Trader, Collector's Showcase and classified word ads do not qualify for the camera ready discount.

O. SPACE RESERVATIONS available for camera ready ads only. Must be made prior to ad deadline. Reserved space must be paid for even if ad does not arrive on time.

P. PRE-PRINTED INSERTS are available in Comics Buyer's Guide. Inquire for additional information and technical specifications.

Q. CIRCULATION is throughout the United States and Canada by subscription and single copy sales by agents in shops and other outlets.

R. PROOF OF PUBLICATION: Tear sheets of new display ads are mailed to those advertisers requesting this service. We regret we cannot provide this service to classified advertisers.

S. NOTE: All advertising orders are accepted subject to the terms and provisions of the current rate card. Krause Publications, Inc. reserves the right to decline advertising or suspend advertising privileges for such periods of time as in its discretion it sees fit, for any reason, whatsoever, irrespective of the validity of the reasons for such declination or suspension. The forwarding of an order is construed as acceptance of all rates and conditions in effect at the time the advertising is submitted. The publisher will not be bound by any conditions, printed or otherwise, appearing on any order for advertising space, billing instructions or copy instructions which conflict with its policies. Advertisers and advertising agencies assume liability for all content (including text representation and illustrations) of advertisements printed, and also assumes responsibility of any claims arising therefrom made against the publisher. It is the advertiser's or agency's responsibility to obtain appropriate releases on any item or individual pictured in their advertising. All agreements are subject to strikes, accidents, acts of God, or other contingencies beyond the publisher's control. The publisher reserves the right to edit any advertising copy to conform with its standard advertising policies, and to reject any ad which in its opinion is unethical or objectional for any reason.

BUT I DIGRESS

by PETER DAVID

'Tis that time of year again — the time when Maggie Thompson asks the musical question: What five gifts would you suggest for holiday giving?

I'm going to try to do things differently this year. Why? Because I have trouble trying to separate gifts by age. That really doesn't seem to work in our little genre. I mean, let's not kid around, OK? Most comic books (at least of the super-hero variety) are aimed at the 8- to 14-year-old male market, but they're read by somewhat younger and far, far older readers. Manufacturers of action figures loudly proclaim that there's no market for female action figures because they're aiming their product at an audience who thinks girls are yucky. In the meantime, a battalion of comics fans (including myself) lobbied for figures of Harley Quinn and Poison Ivy (finally met). Meantime, kids can barrel through computer games that leave adults scratching their heads. So I'm just gonna write about whatever comes to mind and leave it to the individual tastes of you folks to decide what's appropriate for your respective tastes. Some of it is high-end, some considerably less. It is, to say the least, an eclectic selection.

1. Plush Bugs Bunny from Steiff — Much of the time, I don't particularly like Steiff plush toys. They seem "cold," somehow. Impersonal. Excellently manufactured, but not particularly loveable. Not so with the 2500-piece limited edition designed by Steiff and available only through the Warner Bros. Studio Store Gallery. Paul Dini brought it to my attention, and I immediately ordered one (takes a few weeks, so get one now if you want one.) Bugs' head is jauntily perched, he has a carrot snug in his right hand, and nicely tapering ears. Comes with a special little storage bag, although it would be criminal to keep him in there.

2. White Wolf Harlan Ellison Books — No, it's not just that Ellison's a friend. I recommended The Essential Ellison years ago, before I even knew him. Lately, White Wolf publishing has been re-releasing Ellison's titles in smart-looking editions (my favorite is the slip-cased edition of Slippage.)

3. A custom-made "Muppet" — OK, not a Muppet™, per se, but a hand-and-rod puppet of the type that was popularized by Jim Henson. In Atlanta there is a superb craftswoman named Katherine O'Shea, whose work I've admired for a bunch of years. Among other things, she handcrafts some of the most charming puppets I've ever seen. Her work has been on display at an assortment of conventions, and I've commissioned her work in the past. (She made a delightful Jack Deth doll from the Trancers movie series, complete with trenchcoat and gun, which I gave to actor Tim Thomerson.) She's made assorted characters (including Pinhead and every incarnation of Doctor Who) and she's even done puppet versions of assorted comics pros.

The one she did of me is pictured here, although I had a moustache when she originally made it. (No, I didn't commission a puppet of myself; even I'm not that egocentric. She also did one of Neil Gaiman, I understand.) Puppets come with stands and, when possible, custom-made boxes. The name of Kathy's outfit is No Strings Attached, and you can write to her at P.O. Box 15338, Atlanta, GA 30333. And, hey, if not in time for Christmas, there's always birthdays.

4. A video starter pack — I was at a convention where someone complained that there had been no good comic-book movies in the past couple of years. They couldn't be more wrong. You might want to consider a set of fun comic-book videos such as The Phantom, The Mask, The Crow, and even the original Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles. (I'll never forget the woman who wandered into a comics store after buying her kid all sorts of Turtles merchandise and said in surprise, "There's a comic book, too?")

5. The Sandman Bookends — Sculpted by William Paquet and based on designs by Michael Zulli, we have the original incarnation of the Sandman seated on a somber black throne, with a gothic feel in the carving. The other end has the more recent incarnation of Sandman dressed in pure white, with a striking Egyptian motif. Painstaking detail was given to this pair of cold-cast bookends, and it's absolutely nifty looking if you have a shelf large enough to accommodate it. Also, for the Neil Gaiman fans out there: Neverwhere, the novel version of Gaiman's superb television series.

6. The Incredible Hulk Bump and Go Motorcycle — I don't know why. It's just so, so stupid. How can you pass up something that dumb? The Hulk astride a motorcycle, barreling around your living room floor, bumping into stuff and heading in another direction. Not The Punisher or someone that makes sense, no. They gotta use a character capable of leaping two miles at a clip, the absolutely last person you'd see on a chopper. The only thing sillier than the green goliath riding a motorcycle is that there really was a sequence years ago — in an early issue of the Wolverine comic book — wherein The Hulk really did hop astride a hog and zip off down a highway. Why? I don't know. It seemed absurd to me then and it still seems that way.

7. Batman vs. Poison Ivy, Batman vs. Catwoman — Kenner, which previously put out a cool series of 12″ dolls that chart, in three stages, the evolution of Batman and Superman, has a couple of new ones which feature the Caped Crusader facing off against Poison Ivy (as rendered in the movie) and Catwoman (as depicted in the comic books; go figure). As always, you're faced with the problem of whether to leave them in the box for fully mint collectible status, or whether you take them out of the box and play with them. Depends, I suppose, on the age and gender of the person you give them to.

Now that I think about it, you know what would make an interesting study? Take about a dozen kids, an equal mix of boys and girls, and give them each a set of the dolls. Say that I'm stereotyping, if you wish, but how much do you want to bet that the boys would have Batman and Catwoman beating up on each other, and the girls would have them going out on a date?

8. Nathan Heller books by Max Allan Collins — Collins is known to comic-book fans for his work on such characters as Ms. Tree. But, if you haven't checked out the Heller novels yet, it's high time you did. There's a secret history of the world, all right, but such organizations as the Illuminati aren't involved. Life's real mysteries are solved by Heller, a private detective who rubs shoulders with a deft mix of genuine historical figures and always manages to find out what really happened. (Frustratingly, the true story is never made public at the time.) One of the more recent is Blood & Thunder, focusing on the notorious former governor of Louisiana, Huey Long. My personal favorite remains Stolen Away, revealing the true fate of the Lindbergh baby. Another Heller book is due out soon. The title is Flying Blind, and those of you who always wondered can finally learn what really happened to Amelia Earhart.

9. Santa's Twin by Dean Koontz — Just as a wild notion, I thought I'd actually mention something Christmas-related. Koontz certainly has a reputation as a horror writer, and it's reflected in this offbeat foray into kid's books, as Koontz tells us of the usurping of the holiday by Santa's evil twin.

10. Superman on Radio — Available on either CD or cassette, you can thrill to
